LEGION SEEKING 1,000,000 JOBS AS DRIVE OPENS

Country-Wide Campaign to Place Unemployed to Begin Today.

8,000 COMMUNITIES TO AID 30-DAY PLAN

10,800 Veterans' Posts Will Push Move; Favorable Omens Are Seen.

By LAWRENCE SULLIVAN.

With the buoyant forces of business recovery already at work in the field of banking and finance, the American Legion today will launch a militant nation-wide drive to add 1,000,000 men to the country's payrolls during the next 30 days.

Organized to function with the snap and precision of a military maneuver, the campaign represents the most aggressive attack upon unemployment in the history of the Nation.

Under plans worked out to the last detail during the last three months, 10,800 Legion posts in some 8,000 communities will appeal directly to every industrial and commercial establishment in the United States to restore one or more workers to the permanent pay-roll. Out of the combined legion membership of more than 1,000,000, a few more than 200,000 have enlisted for daily assignments in the month's campaign.

Officials Pledge Aid.

Governors of 30 ranking industrial States and the mayors of 134 cities have pledged their support to the drive. President Hoover lauded the enterprise last week as a conspicuous service to the Nation.

The campaign seeks not only to give new drive to the wheels of commerce by restoring the purchasing power and productive capacity of the unemployed, but to release a tremendous volume of rainy day reserves now impounded by uncertainty and fear.

"The mere act of restoring the jobs of a hundred men in a small community would serve to banish the fears of a thousand who have curtailed spending to the point of self-denial," is the way one of the directors of the national campaign summarized the project. "Ten men added to a pay roll may not appear impor-

Ruth Nichols Sets Oil Plane Record

21,300 Feet Is Unofficial Mark in Ship Owned by Chamberlin.

New York, Feb. 14 (A.P.).—Ruth Nichols, society aviatrix, today flew Clarence Chamberlin's Flying Furnace to a new altitude record, on the basis of an unofficial reading of her altimeter. When she landed, it registered 21,300 feet, while Chamberlin's official record for the Diesel-motored craft was 19,363 feet.

Miss Nichols took off at 4:15 p. m. from Floyd Bennett Airport, and landed an hour and one minute later after an exciting flight. She encountered temperatures of 15 degrees below zero, she said, and at 20,000 feet two of her cylinders blew out. At that height, too, she was forced t the use of her oxygen tank.

In addition to the sealed barograph, which was taken from the plane at once, to be sent to Washington for official calibration, Miss Nichols had three altimeters, two of which went out of commission in the upper atmosphere. The unofficial reading was taken from the third altimeter.

Republicans Will Back Hindenburg If He Runs

Social Democrats Are in Group Pledging Aid for Reelection.

Berlin, Feb. 14 (A.P.).—Germany's Republicans, including the mighty social Democrats, who embrace the bulk of the laboring class, indicated at a national conference today that President Paul von Hindenburg would have their support if he agreed to become a candidate for reelection.

Although leaders of various Republican organizations criticized Chancellor Heinrich Bruening for what they termed laxity toward the Nazis (Fascists) of Adolf Hitler, they praised President Von Hindenburg for impartiality and loyalty to the constitution.

They also announced that a special Republican aviation corps was being formed, as well as a student academic legion.

Friedrich Stampfer, Social Democratic member of the Reichstag, who is editor of the newspaper Vorwaerts, said the time had not yet come to announce his party's choice. But he revealed its position by comparing the Nationalists, in their opposition to Hindenburg, to "the populace of

BAKER STILL HOLDS HE ISN'T CANDIDATE

But, Returning From Trip to Mexico, He Refuses to Discuss Politics.

New York, Feb. 14 (A.P.).—Newton D. Baker came back from a vacation cruise today eager to talk about the beauties of Mexico, but grimly shaking his head when asked anything about politics. Only once did he break this silence.

"Are you definitely not a candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination?" he was asked.

"I have repeatedly said I am definitely not a candidate," replied the short, business-like Ohian who was Secretary of War in the Wilson administration.

"Is there likely to be any change in that attitude between now and——"

Mr. Baker cut short the question.

"I am not going to discuss any political subject. I have been out of the country for three weeks and I don't know what is going on."

"Do you think delegates should go to the Democratic national convention instructed for particular presidential candidates?"

"If you mean the national political convention, then the question is a political one and I can not answer it," he replied.

Ralph Hayes, Baker's secretary during the war, who went out on a cutter to meet his former superior, and Mrs. Baker, who accompanied her husband on the Mexican trip, sat in the cabin of the liner Orazara during the interview and smiled at the newspapermen's futile attempt to persuade Baker to talk politics.

The former Cabinet member appeared surprised when he learned on

Fiance Asks U. S. Aid In Tracing Hoax Wire

Boston, Feb. 14 (A.P.).—St. George Arnold, whose 20-year-old fiancee, Miss Elizabeth Barrett Cook, died on board the steamer Chinese Prince after receiving a message that he was dead, tonight asked the State Department in Washington to aid him in getting a copy of the message before the Chinese Prince reaches Boston. He feared the hoax message might be destroyed. He also asked for permission to see the original message when the boat docks.

Arnold told newspapermen: "I have a hunch that the trouble is all on the other side." He said Miss Cook's mother and sister always had been friendly to him and that he knew of no person who might send such a message.

$500,000 FIRE BURNS ATLANTIC CITY PIER

Firemen Hold Flames to One Structure; Famous Sign Totally Wrecked.

Atlantic City, N. J., Feb. 14 (U.P.).—The famous Steeplechase pier, in the heart of this resort city's amusement and hotel district, was virtually destroyed by fire tonight. The pier extended a third of a mile into the Atlantic ocean.

William Fennan, of Ventnor, N. J., the owner, estimated the damage at $500,000.

The pier, a wooden structure, was closed for the winter and the only occupant at the time the fire started was George McCarrow, night watchman. He escaped unaided.

All available fire apparatus in the city was called to the scene, but when the first firemen arrived the flames already had spread through the long structure, fanned by a stiff wind.

The Chesterfield cigarette sign on the roof of the pier, said to be the largest electric sign in the world, collapsed and fell in the flaming ruins 20 minutes after the alarm was turned in by Detective James Malay, who discovered the fire.

Fire-fighting apparatus was drawn up on the boardwalk and on the beach. The pier entrance was just across the boardwalk from Chalfonte-Haddon Hall, one of the city's most fashionable hotels. The wind blew large volumes of smoke toward the

Chaconas, Fruit Dealer, Kills Self

57-Year-Old Merchant Had Worried Over Business, Police Learn.

Charles K. Chaconas, 57 years old, a wholesale fruit merchant, committed suicide early today, according to police, by shooting himself in the head, while in his home, 3814 Kansas avenue northwest. He was found by his wife, who had returned from a social gathering with some friends.

He was found in bed. The bullet struck him in the temple. In his right hand was clutched a revolver. In an adjoining bedroom his three children were asleep.

According to his wife, Mr. Chaconas had been brooding because of business reverses. Detective Sergts. Richard Cox and Charles E. Mansfield expressed the belief that he had committed suicide. Coroner Joseph D. Rogers was notified.

H. H. BLAGDEN'S KIDNAPERS FAIL TO KEEP TRYST

Family of Sportsman Is Ready to Pay $1,000 Ransom Sum.

CAPTORS, HOWEVER, IGNORE RENDEZVOUS

Snowstorm Halts Search for Gang and Victim in Adirondacks.

Lake Placid, N. Y., Feb. 14 (A.P.).—The kidnapers of Harry H. Blagden, wealthy sportsman, did not keep a tryst they had named for shortly after noon today at Tupper Lake.

The family of the man, held since Thursday night, believed the publicity given the case had frightened the kidnapers. Tonight his relatives were waiting for further word from them. They said they were ready to pay the $1,000 demanded at any time and place appointed.

State police were not idle, but Capt. Charles J. Broadfield, of B troop, at Malone, whose men are working on the case, said there had been no developments today.

Spot Is Cul de Sac.

What the authorities could not understand is that Tupper Lake should have been the place selected for the payment of the ransom money. They said that a man "absolutely could not get out of the place" once it was paid, that troopers could easily guard the few roads. The place was reported well guarded today. It is a small place, and anything going on would be known quickly throughout the entire community.

Capt. Broadfield, commenting on some local rumors, said there was nothing to indicate it was not a kidnaping.

It developed today that the family had tried to keep the kidnaping a secret, believing quick payment of the $1,000 demanded was the best way out.

The State police and conservation officers who for two days tramped through the wooded Adirondack Mountains in search of the sportsman and his captors were driven in today by a biting storm, whipped down from the mountains by a stiff wind.

Letter Reveals Abduction.

Blagden, one of five brothers, and socially prominent, was kidnaped from a cottage at the exclusive Lake Placid Club on Mirror Lake.

He planned to attend the Olympic games with Mr. and Mrs. E. Roland Harriman and Knight Wooley, of New York. Harriman is a son of the late E. K. Harriman, railroad builder and financier. When they arrived at the club on Friday morning Blagden had disappeared.

A letter in Blagden's handwriting, received by one of his brothers, revealed the kidnaping. It had been mailed in Utica and demanded $1,000. The captive said he was forced to write the missive with one of the kidnapers holding a pistol at his head.

LAVAL CABINET HELD MENACED BY OVERTHROW

SENATE SHOWDOWN LIKELY TOMORROW

Barthou May Get Post if Fight on Premier Is Successful.

Paris, Feb. 14 (U.P.).—The government of Premier Pierre Laval was believed to be in a critical position tonight, facing the danger of overthrow in parliament this week despite the premier's success in negotiating an accord with Great Britain on the reparations question.

The left wing factions in the chamber of deputies and the senate were angered by what they described as the "railroading" of the electoral reform bill through the chamber. Laval contended that the cabinet was neutral in the debate, but the radical-Socialists were convinced that the bill will give the Nationalists a decided advantage in the forthcoming national elections.

Showdown Planned Tomorrow.

The measure will be debated in the Senate Tuesday and at that time the left-wing senators threaten to make a determined effort to overthrow the government. If they are successful, they might form a new cabinet headed by Louis Barthou, former premier and a member of the Democratic and Radical Union group in the Senate, or a coalition cabinet without Laval.

The attackers of Laval charged that he was swinging more and more toward the "right" or conservative elements in Parliament, as evidenced by a recent letter he wrote to the Nationalist party annual banquet. The criticism of the cabinet was tempered, however, by the imminence of the general elections and also by the complications which would result in connection with the French delegation at the disarmament conference at Geneva.

"Critical But Not Hopeless."

Laval conferred at length with Senate leaders in connection with the threatened attack on the government, and later it was said they felt the situation was "critical but not hopeless."

Albert Peyronnet, a former supporter of Laval, but now the premier's political foe because he was not included in the present cabinet, will lead the attack on the electoral reform bill Tuesday.

Laval talked over the reparations situation and other economic questions with British Foreign Secretary Sir John Simon last night as Simon passed through Paris en route from Geneva to London.

"I believe the accord can be the starting point of the rehabilitation of Europe," Simon said later. He also said his impression was that the Geneva conference had made a good start despite many obvious difficulties.

In regard to the forthcoming reparations conference, expected in June, it was understood the French accepted the British proposals to widen the scope of the sessions to include general financial and economic problems, but there was no agreement as to whether Germany would be granted relief from reparations for the duration of the world economic crisis.

Man Beats School Teacher While She Works in Church

Mrs. Marjorie M. Clark, Paul Junior High Instructor, Attacked in Choir Room of Calvary Baptist; No Trace of Assailant Found.

An unidentified man last night attacked and severely beat a Washington school teacher as she sat in the choir room on the third floor of the Calvary Baptist Church, Eighth and H streets northwest. After threatening her with a gun he escaped by mingling with the congregation at the close of the night's services.

Mrs. Marjorie M. Clark, 27 years old, a teacher in the Paul Junior High School, Eighth and Oglethorpe streets northwest, and a member of the Calvary Church choir, went to the choir room at the start of the services to correct a number of school papers in order to complete them in time for her class this morning.

She was sitting at a desk, Mrs. Clark told police, with her back to the only door in the room. She had nearly completed her work and was preparing to join her husband, Robert Clark, who was attending the services three floors below.

Suddenly, she declared, she heard footsteps in the hallway outside the room. Thinking them to be a friend's, Mrs. Clark paid no attention to the noise until she heard someone enter the room.

As she turned to see who her visitor was, Mrs. Clark was confronted by a man, who, as she stood up, walked toward her, at the same time producing a pistol. Without speaking a word, she said, the man grabbed her arm and thrust the gun against her side.

Mrs. Clark screamed and attempted to break away. As she did so, police were told, the man struck her violently on the head with an object he held in his left hand.

Her cries were heard by members of the congregation as they were about to leave the church. Several men rushed to the third floor and found Mrs. Clark lying unconscious on the floor. No trace of her assail-

Poem Poe Wrote to Friend After Wife's Death Found

New York, Feb. 14 (A.P.).—A poem of despair Edgar Allan Poe wrote to a woman friend on a lace-edged valentine paper sixteen days after the death of his wife, 85 years ago, has been found by Dr. A. S. W. Rosenbach, the latter said today.

Nothing is known about the woman except her name inscribed on the valentine, "Miss Louisa Olivia Hunter."

The poem, dated February 14, 1847:

"Though I turn, I fly not—
I can not depart;
I would try, but try not
To release my heart.
And my hopes are dying,
While, on dreams relying,
I am spelled by art.

Thus the bright snake coiling
Neath the forest tree
Wins the bird, beguiling,
To come down and see.
Like that bird the lover
Round his fate will hover
Till the blow is over
And he sinks—like me."

Miss Elisabeth Ellicott Poe, a member of the staff of The Washington Post, and a third cousin of Edgar Allan poe, said last night she had never read the poem in any of Poe's works, and that it must be "something entirely new." She said she was not qualified to pass upon its authenticity.

'OPEN WAR' IN ORIENT, LEAGUE PROBERS SAY; SECRET PARLEY TODAY

Cunningham Reports On 2 Citizens' Beating

Vice Consul Carried Proper Passports In Aiding Woman Hunt for Girl, He Declares; Stimson Asks for Complete Details.

(United Press.)

Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson yesterday ordered a complete report of the beating of American Vice Consul Arthur R. Ringwalt and an American woman, by Japanese volunteers as Shanghai.

The incident is considered the gravest one of the many that have occurred during the Japanese campaign on the Chinese treaty port, involving as it does the beating not only of a woman, but an official of the United States Government.

Neither Ringwalt nor the woman, described in a State Department dispatch as Mrs. L. Young, "reported to be of the Chinese race," but an American citizen, was badly hurt.

Mrs. Young's home, the consul found later, had been broken into and looted in her absence.

The assault is believed to have occurred last Wednesday though American Consul General Edwin S. Cunningham, in reporting the incident—only yesterday—did not specify the date.

Ringwalt was aiding Mrs. Young to search for her daughter, Peggy, who was missing.

Japanese civilian volunteers beat Mrs. Young. Ringwalt intervened, and was beaten himself. Two Japanese marines looked on, as did two volunteers specially detailed to guard the Americans.

Consul General Cunningham filed a protest at once with the Japanese consul general.

The dispatch reporting the incident was submitted to Stimson at his home yesterday, and he ordered a further and more complete report. Official State Department representations to the Japanese government are expected

TWO MEN SHOT DEAD IN IRISH CAMPAIGN

Government Party Candidate and Detective Are Killed by Volley.

Dublin, Feb. 14 (U.P.).—A volley of gunfire which killed one government party candidate and one detective marked the first outbreak of violence today in the Irish Free State campaign for Tuesday's general elections.

Patrick Reynolds, member of President William T. Cosgrave's Cumann na Ngaedheal party, and a detective named McGeehan were killed while electioneering in Foxfield. Reynolds was a candidate for reelection to the lower chamber of Parliament.

A former policeman named Liddy was arrested. Reynolds and McGeehan were emerging from Liddy's house when the shooting occurred.

Reynolds was a prominent politician and chairman of the Leitrim board of health. He is survived by a large family. McGeehan, who was a sergeant of detectives, was the chief witness Saturday at the inquest in

Hoover Is Leading Murray in Ballot

Brookhart Defeat Favored in Straw Vote Being Cast in Iowa.

Des Moines, Iowa, Feb. 14 (U.P.).—President Hoover and W. H. (Alfalfa Bill) Murray are running neck and neck in a newspaper presidential straw vote, latest results of which were announced in a copyrighted story in the Des Moines Sunday Register.

The latest tabulations showed Hoover had 10,291 votes in his home State, to 9,597 for Murray. All Democraic candidates, however, were running ahead of all Republican presidential possibilities, with 25,845 votes to 11,716. On the Democratic side the tabulation showed Roosevelt, 8,749; Smith, 2,822; Baker, 2,532, and Ritchie, 1,525.

The Register also asked its readers to vote as to whether they were for or against the reelection of Senator Smith W. Brookhart. The tabulation showed 9,473 opposed to his reelection and 6,582 for it.

ARLINGTON WOMAN DIES OF STRANGLING

Mate, Found in Room Staring Blankly at Body, Is Lodged in Jail.

Mrs. Mary Little, 49 years old, of 523 Virginia avenue, Arlington, Arlington County, Va., was strangled to death yesterday in the living room of her home, where her body was found by her sister and brother-in-law, who came to visit them.

Her husband, William, also 49, who for the last three months has been under treatment for a nervous disorder, was sitting in a chair a few feet from the body, staring blankly at the body. On his hands, according to Deputy Sheriff Harry Woodyard, were bloodstains. On the throat of his wife were deep scratches of finger nails.

Little, who has been jobless and ill for four months, is being held at the Arlington County Jail for investigation, made against him by Commonwealth's Attorney Lawrence W. Douglas. All attempts to question him were futile.

Mr. and Mrs. Harley O. Buttolph, of Washington, relatives of Mrs. Little, arrived at the bungalow, where the murder occurred, about 5:30 o'clock. After discovery of the body, Dr. Richard N. Sutton, who had been treating the husband, and Coroner B. H. Swain were called.

Coroner Swain said the woman had been dead not more than a half hour when he examined the body. There were no evidences of violence about the living room nor any place in the

Entombed Miner's Body Is Found in Avalanche

Kellogg, Idaho, Feb. 14 A.P.).—The body of Carl Areander, miner entombed in a snow avalanche at Big Creek Gulch, was brought out tonight by rescue crews who tunneled through 50 feet of snow to reach him.

Search continued for Henry Lund, who lived with Areander in a little cabin demolished by the slide. A black cat, one of two owned by the victims, was the only living thing the rescue party had found. The other cat was dead.

Amateur Forecaster Sees Feb. 22d as Clear and Cool

Casting a weather eye two days farther than meteorologists at the United States Weather Bureau, Herbert Janvrin Browne, amateur long-range weather forecaster of this city, predicted last night that Monday, February 22, George Washington's birthday, will be a clear, cool day. The temperature, he said, will probably average about 40 degrees during the day which opens the Bicentennial.

Mr. Browne also predicted a strong probability that the day before Washington's birthday, and the day after, will be rainless. This forecaster's prognostication is far from being mere guess work. On the contrary it is based on a system involving as much painstaking study as the methods used by the United States Weather Bureau.

A strong factor influencing Mr Browne's forecast is the fact that there has been no rain in Washington on Mondays for the past six weeks. The cycle of weather, he points out, has been running on a seven-day schedule. Assuming that this cycle will continue at least another week, he is fairly confident that next Monday will maintain the same weather average as the past six. He also predicted that the Monday record of no rain will continue today.

Offensive Is Entirely in Hands of Japanese, Report States.

NEUTRALS AGAIN FAIL IN EFFORT FOR PEACE

Tokyo to Oppose Yen's Plea for Special Assembly; Landings Cause Stir.

(Copyright, 1932, by the Associated Press.)

Geneva, Switzerland, Feb. 14—The League of Nations heard from its investigators today that "a state of open war exists" at Shanghai, and called a secret meeting of its council for tomorrow to consider a Chinese request for an emergency meeting of the full league assembly.

W. W. Yen, Chinese delegate, said he was determined to go on with the appeal for a special meeting of the assembly, filed Friday, if the council decided it would not convene the meeting itself.

Naotake Sato, Japanese delegate, said Japan would oppose the Chinese plea. The Japanese would take exception to the transfer of any portion of the dispute with China to the scope of Article XV of the league covenant under which the extraordinary session would be called, if at all.

May Cite Article XVI.

If China failed to obtain redress under Article XV, she would have no other recourse except to cite Article XVI involving economic and military sanctions, the former equivalent to an international boycott against an aggressor nation.

The report to the league was made by its Shanghai commission, sent to investigate conditions there.

A reign of terror resulted in the Hongkew district of Shanghai after its occupation by the Japanese, the commission reported.

"The offensive is entirely in the hands of the Japanese," the report said, "whose declared object is to capture the Woosung forts and drive all Chinese troops a considerable distance from Shanghai."

Flee From Hongkew Area.

"The Japanese consul has admitted that excesses have been committed by his nationals at a time when feeling was running high and chaotic conditions prevailed, but the situation is greatly improved," the report said. "A considerable number of undesirable Japanese have been deported to Japan."

The report, signed by Count Galeazzo Ciano, Italian consul general at Shanghai and son-in-law of Premier Mussolini of Italy, said it was impossible to determine which side had broken the truce arranged by various neutral officials early this month.

Withdrawal Is Denied.

The report and the news that Japan had landed 12,000 fresh troops at Shanghai stirred the league to its depths. Reports circulated that Japan would withdraw from the league if a special session of the assembly was called, but they were denied emphatically by the Japanese delegation.

Instead of going directly to league headquarters for information, the Japanese spokesman visited Rene Massigli, French representative, to obtain an opinion on the procedure

RESERVE BANK EXPANSION BILL PASSAGE NEAR

ACTION FOR REVIVAL OF CREDIT SPEEDED

(Associated Press.)

Congress is to pour new blood into the Nation's clotted credit channels this week by release of $750,000,000 in gold from the Treasury.

The Glass-Steagall bill to expand the workings of the Federal Reserve System already bears committee approval in both the Senate and House and has a legislative right-of-way to insure prompt enaction.

Party leaders expect little difficulty in placing it before President Hoover by the end of the week for his signature.

Meanwhile, the question of relief for the unemployed through direct Federal appropriation reaches the showdown stages in the Senate. Definite action today on the La Follette-Costigan measure or the Democratic substitute is hoped for by leaders.

Method Uncertain.

Apparently a majority of the Senate favors some sort of relief legislation, but the form it will take is admittedly uncertain.

Republican chieftains claim they have sufficient strength to defeat the La Follette-Costigan measure to provide $375,000,000 for grants to States and $375,000,000 for road construction. The Democratic counter-proposal for loans to States for relief and road construction appears to be more strongly intrenched.

A compromise suggested by Senator Wagner (Democrat), New York, would permit the States to repay relief loans to the Government through Federal-aid highway grants after 1937.

In the House, a relief bill introduced by Representative Warren (Democrat), North Carolina, would advance the States $75,000, to be repaid after 1938.

Search for $1,241,000,000 in additional revenue in 1933 to balance the Federal budget will be resumed by the House ways and means committee today with a study of a proposed selective manufactures' sales tax.

Mills to Be Recalled.

Secretary Mills will be recalled tomorrow to make further Treasury recommendations for taxes, in view of the prospective yield of but $788,000,000 on the administration's program as compared to the prospective $1,250,000,000 deficit in the coming fiscal year.

A vote will be had on the Norris resolution to eliminate the "lame duck" session of Congress in the House tomorrow, and consideration of the supply bill for the State, Justice, Commerce and Labor Departments will begin. Final action is hoped for late today on the Interior Department supply bill.

Explains Compromise.

In support of his proposed compromise, Senator Wagner said it would provide that upon "application from a State certifying its need, the Federal Government shall 'advance' to that State the money which that State would be entitled to receive out of future Federal-aid-highway grants."

"To make the liquidation of these advances as simple and as light as possible," he added, "my proposal provides that the deductions from the future Federal aid highway grants to the States shall not begin until 1937; shall be spread over a minimum period of five years and shall never in any one year amount to more than one-fifth of the highway grant payable in that year to the State."

Urges Buying Power Boost.

Prof. John Dewey, president of the People's Lobby, said in a statement "The scale on which hoarding exists is equivalent to a vote by the American people of a lack of confidence in the present rulers of the country, economic and political," in commenting on President Hoover's antihoarding campaign. He asked that the "rulers of the country" do something "which will put money in circulation by increasing the power of the unemployed to buy."

The Senate banking committee today is to start consideration of another administration-sponsored relief measure—the home loan bank bill. In proposing it, President Hoover contended it would revive home building on a large scale.

The bill was attacked yesterday by the Mortgage Bankers Association of America, on the ground that an oversupply of homes already exists.

Senator Hatfield (Republican), of West Virginia, said last night he would present a substitute proposal tomorrow to appropriate $375,000,000 of which $100,000,000 would be expended in construction of public buildings already allocated and $275,000,000 placed in the Treasury available to States to borrow after depositing securities.

He said in a statement his amendment did not provide for a dole and was "in conformity with legislation enacted by the Congress and approved by the Chief Executive in similar emergencies." Hatfield expressed confidence this plan would receive the approval of the House and of President Hoover.

Many Letters Sent to Knox Promising Support in Drive

Penciled Notes Encourage Committee More Than Imposing Letterheads; One Writer Says Women Can Halt Hoarding and Eliminate Fear.

Chicago, Feb. 14 (A.P.).—Dead dollars are responding already to the Government's war on hoarding, calling them from their hiding places in socks.

Thousands of letters, radiating confidence and promising support, pour daily into the office of Frank Knox, chairman of President Hoover's anti-hoarding committee, and publisher of the Chicago Daily News.

Yet the plan of battle is only three days old.

Another point, which Mr. Knox considers almost as important, is that many letters are written by hand on blue-ruled tablet paper, suggesting origins in humble homes.

It is to them, Mr Knox said, the idea of putting hoarded cash back into circulation has appealed most strongly.

These penciled notes encourage the committee more than bond stationery and imposing letterheads. Mr. Knox says they indicated the backbone of the country has been stiffened with optimism from the smallest consumers up.

The committee was given an idea of the enormity of its task when a Federal bank examiner reported the condition of a bank in a small Western city. Water mains burst, flooding the vaults. They held $500,000 in cash deposits, but an additional $347,000 was found soaked in safe deposit boxes.

The campaign against hidden cash has taken many different lines of attack.

En Eastern contractor suggests paper currency be stamped with the date of issuance and discounted 10 per cent in value if it has not passed through a bank within a year.

An Erie, Pa., paper company advertises for confidence under the biblical quotation, "And I was afraid and hid my talent in the earth."

A Northern business man contributes an article headed: "Once More to the Frontier."

A New Yorker suggests "Calm headlines," citing that "damage can be done by heavy type and black ink in newspapers."

A business men's club reports that John Massey, digging for clams, unearthed 22 silver dollars and deposited them in Tottenville, N. Y., bank, "the first effort to stop hoarding."

The editor of one of the largest women's maganizes informs the committee that women can eliminate fear and halt hoarding, and that "it is up to them to do it."

A new York business man suggests slogans on pay checks. Muskegon, Mich., has organized "Minute Men" to preach confidence in every home the week of February 22.

The antihoarding idea will be incorporated into the National Business Women's week, starting March 7.

A country storekeeper in Iowa writes that "dad has been here for 46 years; he knows everybody for miles around and their affairs; there is plenty of money hidden, but it will come out when the boys and girls have their confidence restored."

That is the purpose of the committee. Mr. Knox believes it can be done.

Montgomery Young People Busy on Essay Test Work

Wide Interest in Post Washington Competition Is Described by Robert E. Bondy, Chairman of Schools Group of Civic Federation.

"The chief topic of the young people of Montgomery County is the Post George Washington Essay Contest. Many of them seem determined to win a share of the $1,000 to be distributed among the 108 winners," Robert E. Bondy, chairman of the committee on schools of the Civic Federation of Montgomery County, Md., declared yesterday in commending the contest.

"A great advantage for the young people in the public, private and parochial schools of the county," continued Mr. Bondy, "is in the wide range of the contest. There is no restriction to any particular phase, deed or writings of Washington from which the contestants may choose their topic. In this way there is certain to be more originality in the essays and at the same hand the students will learn more of Washington's life than if they were forced to write only on a single topic.

"The teachers of the county are as interested as the students in the contest. Of course, they all appreciate the honor that would come to their institutions should one of the leading prize winners be among their group. In addition, of course, if one of the number should win a first or second prize that would mean also the placing of a bronze bas-relief of George Washington mounted on a mahogany plaque in the classrooms of the fortunate pupils who win them. That brings the school spirit back of the participants in the contest from this county."

The Post George Washington Essay Contest will close at midnight on March 14 and positively no essays will be received after that date.

That means that the boy or girl who does not complete the essay in time will have all his or her labor lost and not be able to enter the competition.

It would be better, however, to delay turning in the essays until the last moment than to submit them, as have a number of boys and girls not correctly spelled, slovenly prepared and containing inaccurate information about the life of Washington. Fortunately, these essays are not many. For the most part, the essays being turned in show thought, careful preparation and are correctly spelled.

Glance over your essay before you turn it in to The Washington Post for consideration. See first of all if it does contain more than 500 words. Cut down to 500 words if it is overwritten. Then check up on the spelling of any word which seems doubtful to you. Read over the essay slowly and see if you have expressed your thoughts on George Washington in the best possible way. Finally see that the essay is neat, nicely written or typewritten and is clean.

The prize for which you are striving is a $100 first prize. That is worth taking a great deal of pains to win. Then above the financial award is that of being fortunate enough to achieve such a goal in the bicentennial year of George Washington's birth. It is something that the lucky winners will remember all of their lives.

The Post Washington Essay Editor urged yesterday that all contestants who have completed their essays forward them at once to The Washington Post. All essays entered must be sorted into age groups to be submitted to the judges. This is a heavy task, and every essay received at this time lessens the burden certain to be felt at the completion of the contest.

Meatless Days Planned To Maintain Drachma

Athens, Greece, Feb. 14 (A.P.).—Measures proposed by the government for maintenance of the drachma, Greek monetary unit, were today revealed as including a regulation prescribing three meatless days weekly in order to restrict the importation of meat.

Under the plan permission to exchange moneys abroad would re refused except to students holding scholarships, and further export of currency would not be allowed except in payment for prime necessities such as food and raw materials.

United Engineering Trustees to Unveil De Laszlo's Canvas in New York.

The United Engineering Trustees will unveil a large portrait of President Hoover this afternoon at 5 o'clock in the library of the Engineering Societies Building, 29 West Thirty-ninth street, New York City.

The portrait, for which the President sat at the request of the national engineering societies, was painted by Philip A. de Laszlo, of London.

It will be formally delivered to the United Engineering Trustees as custodians by Gano Dunn, chairman of the Hoover medal board of award, representing the American Society of Civil Engineers, the American Institute of Mining and Metallurgical Engineers, the American Society of Mechanical Engineers and the American Institute of Electrical Engineers.

President Hoover is an honorary member of each of these societies and a past president of the American Institute of Mining and Metallurgical Engineers. The portrait will be formally accepted by H. A. Kidder, president of the United Engineering Trustees. Many engineers from all parts of the country will attend the unveiling.

Transamerica Vote Fight Begins Today

Giannini's Effort to Regain Control of Corporation Hangs in Balance.

Wilmington, Del., Feb. 14 (A.P.).—With control of the Transamerica Corporation at stake, New York and San Francisco financiers tonight were girding themselves for an expected "battle of proxies" at tomorrow's annual meeting of one of the largest holding companies in the country.

A. P. Giannini, whose colorful business career began with a commission house on the fish wharves of San Francisco, is here from the West Coast with the object of regaining control of the company he founded in 1928.

His first act was to survey a corps of clerks counting a truckload of proxies in the offices of the Corporation Trust Co., the resident agent for the Transamerica Corporation. He hopes these and other proxies, which may arrive by airplane will wrest control of the concern from a group of New York Bankers headed by Elisha Walker, chairman of the board of directors.

The Walker group, aligned with James A. Bacigalupi, of San Francisco, president of the corporation, criticized Giannini's management prior to his resignation from the presidency a year ago.

TEACHER IS BEATEN AT WORK IN CHURCH

house. A string of beads, which were worn by Mrs. Little, had been broken, and the upper part of her dress was slightly disarranged.

None of the neighbors, including ant, was found. Police expressed the belief that he escaped in the crowd leaving the church after fleeing down a rear stairway.

Police are at a loss to explain a motive for the attack. Although robbery was hinted, the man failed to take Mrs. Clark's pocket book, which was lying on the desk beside her. The church money is kept in the main office of the church on the first floor.

It was found a rear cellar door had been forced and it is believed the man gained entrance by that means. It is believed he roamed about the church during the services in an effort to locate where the money was kept.

Mrs. Clark was taken to Emergency Hospital, where it was found she had suffered severe lacerations to her head and shock. A number of stitches were required to close the wound. She returned to her home in the Cavalier Hotel, 3500 Fourteenth street northwest, after receiving treatment.

It was pointed out that the man, who was described as being about 25 years old and wearing a dark suit and gray coat and hat, was one who had recently been loitering about the church, and one occasion entered the office and asked a clerk for money to buy food.

William Little, jr., whose home is less than 50 feet from that of his parents, heard any noise or any indication of a fight or struggle. When the Buttolphs discovered the body, they rushed to the home of William Little, jr., and he hurried to the home of his parents.

The elder Little's condition was such that the Arlington County police were unable to question him. His only response to questioning was that he had had no difficulty with his wife.

F. M. Beatty, a brother-in-law of Mrs. Little, who lives in Alexandria, said last night the elder Little had been unable to give any explanation of Mrs. Little's death to either his son or the Buttolphs.

Dr. Sutton gave Little a sedative soon after his arrest. Commonwealth's Attorney Douglas and Sheriff Howard B. Fields plan to question him today. The body of Mrs. Little was removed to the undertaking establishment of C. J. Ives.

In addition to Mrs. Beatty, her husband and son, William, jr., Mrs. Little is survived by another sister and two brothers, Frank and Justin Settles, who live in Hagerstown, Md.

'LOCAL SERVICE' AIM OF BANK AID AGENCY

Diversion of Funds to Great Financial Centers Faces Severe Attack.

(Associated Press.)

Efforts to broaden the Nation's credit base contemplate the return of many banks to their old "local service" function from which they were lured by the skyrocketing securities market of a few years ago.

Some 28,000 of them—principally those in the smaller cities and towns—once were looked upon as the financing agents for neighborhood farmers, manufacturers and business men. With the boom days they restricted local credit and centered their investments in the great financial centers.

This diversion of funds from the farm and factory militated against geenral local prosperity and at about the time stocks and bonds began to tumble many banks found themselves holding unpaid notes and delinquent mortgages.

Frozen Sea of Securities.

It is this frozen sea of securities that the Reconstruction Finance Corporation with a Federal appropriation of $500,000,000 and a borrowing power of $2,000,000,000 hopes to break by accepting the soundest of the paper as collateral for loans to distressed banks.

In a typical case the representatives of a bank which has not been closed, but which can show need for assistance, would go to the nearest representatives of the corporation with the securities they can show to be good and deposit them at a certain fixed value as collateral for the money they borrow.

Given a long period in which to repay the loan at a rate of interest to be determined by the rate the corporation has to pay for the money it lends, the bank would be expected to use its new funds in reviving usual commercial loans to business, industry and private borrowers.

Contraction of Deposits.

Normally, a bank finances its operations by lending its depositors' money at an interest rate higher than it pays.

Records show a recent broad contraction of deposits, a drain sufficient to so narrow the facilities that banks carrying securities they can not rediscount must have funds in lieu of deposits. The corporation is to answer that need by substituting money from the Federal Treasury or from the public sale of its own debentures.

It is believed that by giving momentum to these stagnated credits—negotiable paper that normally could be sold or borrowed against by the bank holding it—the corporation can revive confidence in the universally adopted method of doing business on credit. Banks will be able to resume the habit of renewing notes and depositors will put back into circulation the money that has been retired from service.

Baby Plays Best His Way, Savant and Daly Concede

By JOHN J. DALY

PARENTS, in their attiude toward children, are just so many misguided people trying to get along in the world. In the early formative period of life the child should be let alone, to pursue the even tenor of its way. This, according to the latest theory advanced by the editor of Clinical Medicine.

When the baby wants to rattle a rattle, that is what the baby wants to do. When he stands on his head, or jumps off the drawing room sofa, that, at the moment, is the mood that best suits the boy—so let him jump. The same with the girl. If she takes her mother's shears and cuts up an evening gown or two, she is then in the cutting mood.

The policy of love 'em and leave 'em alone, if rigidly pursued, says the professor, would serve as a preventive of unstable emotional life in later years. The Boxer uprising came about because Chinese fathers, in the old days, boxed their boys' ears, thus giving them a boxer complex. Hence the rebellion.

* * * *

WHAT happened before can happen again if parents do not permit unregulated play. Psychiatrists find that the seat of emotion is equally divided between the hands and the feet. If little ones want to write on the walls or kick the furniture, let 'em alone. Any curtailment of emotion is bound to lead to an outburst of disaster, not only for the children, but for the entire human family.

"This is the child's business," the doctor says, adding that every waking hour should be filled with play that the child chooses, "because he knows better than the adult what is good for him."

About time the world understood this: Grown men and women, their own childhood left behind them, forget those good old days of the mud pies and the sand-pile. What do they know about the joys of the nursery and the playhouse? How long has it been since the average man or woman came home with clothes torn from jumping fences? How many play duck on davy, or any of those childhood games? Yet, this is the tribe that tries to regulate the play of boys and girls.

* * * *

THE doctor is right. Leave the kids alone. They know what they want when they want it—the very essence of Americanism. The height of barbarism is "Spare the rod and spoil the child." In the development of Young America the rod has no place, unless it be the fishing rod.

It may sound crazy, but it fits in with the new order. When future historians and students of ethnology write about wild life in America they will, inadvertently, if this policy continues, really be sketching the course of Child Life in America.

WET CLAIMS POWER IN HALF OF STATES

Political Gains Are Cited to 506,000 Members of Curran's Society.

(Associated Press.)

Henry H. Curran, president of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, said yesterday in his annual report that through expansion of the association "we are now prepared for active and militant local work in half of the States of the Union."

Reporting to the 506,100 members, he said political gains had been made during the year. He contended that "distress and unemployment threw the light of publicity as never before upon the enormous waste of revenue in an experiment which has been a scandalous failure for 12 unbroken years."

"When we published pamphlets in 1929-30 showing that prohibition involved a loss of more than $900,000,000 a year," the report continued, "the drys were vociferous in their claims that Volsteadism saved billions annually and was the father of prosperity. Today they have perforce abandoned this prosperity myth."

Lists Developments.

Curran listed the "important developments" of the year as follows:

"The number of members of the House of Representatives definitely favoring submission of a repeal resolution to the people in State conventions increased from 160 in 1930 to 190 1931.

"The number of senators favoring a submission resolution increased from 18 in 1930 to 34 in 1931.

"Party leaders in Congress announced that record roll calls on submission of a repeal resolution to the States would be taken in the Senate and House.

"Branch organizations were set up in eight additional States bringing the total to 24 militantly active State units and 114,514 new members were enrolled, making a total of 506,100.

"In half a dozen special elections, where congressional districts had been considered unalterably dry, advocates of repeal or submission defeated prohibitionists.

Demands For Referendum.

"Demands were made by more than 100 organizations, including such national groups as the American Legion, the Veterans of Foreign Wars, the American Bar Association and Junior League, for an opportunity to vote on repealing the Eighteenth Amendment.

"The people of Finland voted overwhelmingly to repeal their dry law, thus making the United States the only country with national prohibition."

Curran reported the association spent $522,821 during 1931, receiving $534,507 in contributions.

Predicting that "48 (liquor control) plans—one in each state"—would follow repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment, the report explained the present aim of his group: "We are fighting, not for liquor, but for the preservation of a principle on which our Government is founded."

Curran said "dry losses" have shown "the prohibition front is disintegrating both inside and outside of Congress."

LEGION'S JOBS DRIVE SET TO START TODAY

tant, but the creation of ten new jobs signalizes the security of a hundred or a thousand old ones. Multiplied by these powerful forces of community psychology, a million new jobs throughout the country in 30 days may be expected to exert a restorative influence out of all proportion to the actual increase in the weekly pay rolls."

Plan Perfectly Organized.

So perfectly organized is the plan to be launched in every State at 8 o'clock this morning that legion teams also will canvass every residential section in cities of 5,000 or more population. Through a man-a-block campaign, neighbors will be urged to provide full-time employment at odd jobs to at least one man in every city square.

Henry L. Stevens, jr., national commander of the American Legion, will devote himself exclusively to the million-job campaign during the next month. National headquarters for the drive will be maintained in the Hotel Biltmore, New York. In more than 600 cities arrangements have been made to report day-to-day progress through a central clearing house, as in the Community Chest campaigns.

With the stock market averages at a new 1932 high at Saturday's close, and all basic commodity prices notably bolstered by the prospect of adequate trade credits, the plea to expand pay rolls finds the business community generally more inclined to take a bullish viewpoint than at any time during the past six months.

Confidence Appears Growing.

The sustained advance of stocks and bonds on the big exchange Saturday, after a five-point upturn Thursday, appears to reflect growing confidence in the soundness of the Federal Reserve credit expansion policy.

The week-end reviews and comments all jell around the central thought that the modernized national credit system will give a lasting impetus to business all along the line. Nowhere does reputable opinion countenance the suggestion that inflation is at hand.

Instead, the controlling judgment is that the new reserve policy, plus the operations of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, assure banking credit facilities for commercial operations on the scale the country has tried repeatedly to attain since the spring of 1931. On every hand, heretofore, the first feeble impulse to industrial expansion, however, has been checked by the persistent credit stringency. With that jam broken, the normal forces of recovery are at last unleashed.

That, at least, is the predominant note in the reactions of those in and out of the Government who have at hand all the factors of a conclusive judgment on the point.

Foreign exchange rates generally moved unfavorably on the dollar Saturday, to an extent which aroused apprehension in some quarters at home. Developments in this field during the next few days will be significant.

MINERS TO PROTEST; TROOPS ARE CALLED

Union Members in Kentucky Plan Mass Meeting Today on Killing by Guard.

Barbourville, Ky., Feb. 14 (A.P.).—Fifty special policemen were sworn in today, a company of National Guardsmen will arrive tonight from Harlan, and the Barbourville National Guard unit will stand by for use if needed in halting a scheduled National miners demonstration here tomorrow.

The State troops were requested by County Judge Frank Baker after the town was flooded with circulars calling upon union members to make a mass protest here tomorrow against the killing of Harry Simms, alias Symes, who was fatally wounded by a mine guard last week.

Gov. Ruby Laffoon, at Frankfort, ordered thirty men of the Harlan National Guard unit to Barbourville. The Harlan troops will be under the command of Capt. Doc L. Nolan. They were reported ready to move from Harlan at 5:30 p. m.

Chief of Police Ralph Mayhew swore in the extra force of policemen and issued them arms. Capt. Ben C. Herndon, commander of a National guard unit of 65 men here, said he would not call out the local guard unless the situation warranted, but that the troops would be held in readiness.

Two men were arrested on criminal syndicalism charges today, accused of distributing the union circulars. They are Jess Smith and C. C. Brackett, of this county.

Chief Mayhew said the city had not planned to prevent the demonstration until the circulars were distributed today. Signed "Central Strike Committee, Kentucky District, National Miners Union, Pineville, Ky.," the circulars called for a demonstration at Barbourville at 2 p. m. tomorrow against "killings organized by coal operators and their agents, the city and county authorities in the counties in the strike region."

Today's ban was the first ever placed on union activities in Knox County, though National Miners Union meetings have been prohibited in Bell and Harlan Counties adjoining.

Arlin Miller, guard, charged with Simms' murder, is to be given examining trial tomorrow morning before County Judge Baker. Simms' body, which lies in an undertaking establishment here, will be turned over to a memorial committee of the National Miners Union when it arrives, Chief Mayhew said, but all other miners and union organizers may be kept out of the city.

All roads into the city will be guarded, and bus terminals and railroad stations will be watched. All persons acting suspiciously or who can not give a reason for their entering the city will be turned back or searched before being permitted to enter the city limits.

Miss Dorothy Wilkes, a nurse who came here from Knoxville to care for Simms after he was wounded, was ordered not to leave the city until the union's memorial committee arrives. Miss Wilkes said Simms, a union organizer, formerly was an organizer for the "young Communists party in the South."

A meeting will be held at the National Press Club Auditorium tomorrow, at which the members of the writers' delegation to Kentucky, of which Waldo Frank is chairman, will report on conditions in the strike area. This committee of writers and professional people was kidnaped and driven out of Kentucky last Wednesday.

The committee arrived in Washington Friday to place its findings before Congress and ask for an investigation.

Snows Bar Smith's North Dakota Race

Weather Prevents Entering of His Name in State Primary.

Bismarck, N. Dak., Feb. 14 (A.P.).—Because heavy snows blocked prairie roads, former Gov. Alfred E. Smith of New York will not be entered as a Democratic presidential candidate in North Dakota's primary.

When the time for filing of candidacies expired at midnight Saturday, petitions for Smith had not arrived at the secretary of State's office here. Vincent Ferguson had left Minot, 120 miles away, earlier in the day with petitions, but drifted roads prevented his arrival on time.

Although Smith's name will not appear with two other Democrats and two Republicans on the preferential ballot March 15, it will still be possible for his supporters to enter a pledged slate of candidates for delegates to the national convention.

JAPAN TO DEMAND WITHDRAWAL SOON

Plans to Renew Offensive if Chinese Refuse to Obey Ultimatum.

Tokyo, Monday, Feb. 15 (A.P.).—Lieut. Gen. Kenkichi Uyeda, commander of the Japanese land forces at Shanghai, was expected to present an ultimatum to the Chinese shortly demanding withdrawal and if he were refused, to launch an early renewal of the Japanese offensive.

This was revealed today simultaneously with the lifting of censorship on news of Japanese troop movements to the Chinese city.

(Gen. Uyeda at Shanghai said he hoped an ultimatum on the Chinese would not be necessary to effect their withdrawal, but that the Japanese were prepared to attack within a comparatively short while unless the Chinese retreat was brought about by some means).

It was also announced that two Japanese divisions are represented in troop strength at Shanghai and total forces there were represented as about 15,000 men. They are included in the Ninth and Twelfth divisions, the Twelfth division preceded the Ninth, which landed yesterday with Gen. Uyeda. It was said that only part of the Twelfth division had been sent to China.

"Spectacular developments," including the establishment of an independent state in Manchuria, was anticipated today in Rengo (Japanese) News Agency dispatches from Changchun.

The messages said the Chinese leaders in Manchuria were assembling at Mukden to arrange final details of the formation of a new independent state.

Gov. Hsi Hsia of Kirin Province already has passed through Changchun en route to Mukden, and Gen. Mah Chan-Shen will leave Harbin for Mukden tomorrow.

Dispatches from Harbin today said no local conflict with Soviet Russia was anticipated nor any movement of Japanese troops farther northward contemplated. It was said the Japanese forces would be limited to Harbin and Tsitaihar. The approximate strength of the Japanese forces in Manchuria was estimated at 20,000 to 25,000.

SECRETARY ARTHUR M. HYDE.

THE story of Arthur Mastick Hyde's rise in life is an inspiring one. There is one chapter, however, that should not be shown to small boys. It might reverse all the notions that have been hammered into their brains by Horatio Algar and other apostles of success. That chapter has to do with Hyde's becoming Secretary of Agriculture.

The truth is that Hyde became Secretary of Agriculture because he got lazy and went to Florida on a fishing trip. That was in the winter of 1929. In Florida at the time was Herbert Hoover, then the President-elect, who was getting into shape for the inauguration.

Hoover had received some favorable reports on Hyde, but he hardly knew him. When he learned that the Missourian was only a few miles away, he sent for him. So impressed was he after an interview that he promptly offered Hyde the Agriculture Department post. And Hyde accepted, although he had vowed that he was through with public life.

Hyde has the reputation of being a real dirt farmer. That is not true. He is a lawyer, having received his LL. B. degree at the University of Michigan. However, he does own a lot of farm properties in his State.

A tall, rangy fellow, with a powerful voice and a great store of wit, Hyde is regarded as one of the two best orators in Missouri. The other one is Jim Reed.

In 1928 Hyde had a chance to take the seat which Reed vacated in the Senate. He turned it down. In 1920 he was elected Governor of Missouri, the second Republican ever to hold that office.

CUNNINGHAM MAKES REPORT ON BEATING OF 2 AMERICANS

to come after receipt of the fuller report.

Quoting Cunningham's dispatch of yesterday, the State Department announcement of the assault said:

"American Vice Consul Ringwalt, carrying an American passport, a pass from the Shanghai municipal council bearing the seal of the Japanese admiral and a pass from the Japanese consulate, accompanied by Mrs. L. Young, an American national, were proceeding to search for Mrs. Young's daughter, Peggy Young, who had been last seen at 129 Barchet road.

Questioned by Japanese.

"As they were entering Barchet road they were questioned by Japanese volunteers on duty there. What ensued is told briefly in the report of Vice Consul Ringwalt to Consul General Cunningham, as follows:

"'I was able to convince them of the nature of my mission. I had more difficulty in reminding them that, while Mrs. Young is reported to be of the Chinese race, she was an American citizen. Eventually, however, we were allowed to pass and were furnished an escort of two Japanese volunteers, both of whom spoke English.

"'A few hundred feet farther on we were again stopped by another group of volunteers, who rushed up to us waving clubs. I again very patiently attempted to explain to them the circumstances of my mission, but the presence of the woman seemed to infuriate them.

"'One volunteer seized her by the arm and one by the other, while a third commenced to strike her.

Few Minor Bruises.

"'On my attempting to interfere, their wrath was transferred to me and I sustained a few minor bruises at their hands and at the same time had to submit to the humiliation of being searched, apparently for firearms.

"'Two more (the "more" is not explained) Japanese marines were present at this time.

"'I continued to request that I be permitted to visit Mrs. Young's home and was finally allowed to do so. I found that the building had been broken into and deserted and everying of value removed or destroyed.'

"Consul General Cunningham reported further that neither Mr. Ringwalt nor Mrs. Young suffered physical disability.

"Mr. Cunningham reported also that Mr. Ringwalt had been doing excellent service in evacuating Americans from the Japanese sectors. He is invariably tactful and courteous. Temperamentally he is particularly well suited for the work and he speaks a smattering of Japanese and Shanghai dialect.

"Consul General Cunningham filed a protest with the Japanese consul general.

"In regard to the incident itself, the department is asking for a further and more complete report."

Cunningham cabled the department that the situation at Woosung and in the Chapei district of Shanghai was "comparatively quiet" at 5 a. m., E. S. T., yesterday (6 p. m., yesterday Shanghai time.)

Meantime, Admiral Montgomery Taylor, in command of the American Asiatic detachment at Shanghai, notified the Navy Department yesterday that seven additional Japanese troopships arrived at Shanghai on February 13 and 14, bringing 8,500 fresh men, additional artillery and horses.

He said one of the troopships stopped at Woosung. The Chapei area, Taylor said, was the scene of bombing and light artillery fire during yesterday while Japanese warships and bombing planes attacked the Woosung forts.

DISARMING SCHEMES REACH SIFTING POINT

Speakers From 14 Nations Remain to Be Heard Before General Session Ends.

Geneva, Feb. 14 (A.P.).—Efforts to sort diverse schemes for disarming the world into an acceptable code were ahead of the International Arms Conference as it began its third week today.

Fourteen speakers, mostly from the smaller nations, remained to be heard before the completion of the general session and the beginning of detailed technical discussions.

With the preliminary talk out of the way, the conference will split up toward the end of the week into commissions dealing directly with land, sea and air armaments.

German Yet to Speak.

But first it will hear Wednesday from Rudolf Nadolny, German Ambassador to Turkey, the German program for gradual disarmament as called for by the Versailles treaty, which disarmed Germany.

The directorate of the conference tomorrow will begin examining and codifying the various disarmament proposals already presented by the several delegations. It will then refer them to the appropriate commission.

Meanwhile several of the principal delegates returned home over the week-end to report to their governments, expecting to return in time to hear Ambassador Nadolny present the German plan in detail. Chief among them are Sir John Simon, British foreign secretary, and Dino Grandi, foreign minister of Italy.

Turkish Address Slated.

The first speaker tomorrow will be Tewfik Rushdi Bey, Turkish foreign minister. Delegates of several small nations not among the fourteen scheduled to speak this week may deliver brief addresses, as officials of the League of Nations, which prides itself as representing the "little fellows," have beseeched them to make themselves heard.

London, Feb. 14 (A.P.).—Sir John Simon, British foreign secretary, said on his return from Geneva today that the world disarmament conference there had made "a good start."

The British delegate, who came back to London for a brief conference with government leaders, also expressed "considerable satisfaction" at the "firm agreement" among Great Britain, France, Germany and three other interested powers to hold the proposed conference on reparations and war debts at Lausanne, Switzerland, in June.

Bruening Demands World Disarm to German Level

New York, Feb. 14 (A.P.).—A demand that other nations disarm to a level of equality with Germany was voiced by Chancellor Heinrich Bruening in a radio broadcast from Berlin today on the NBC network.

The German chancellor said the Geneva disarmament conference must rescue his country from the present "impossible situation" that leaves her in a position of "dishonor and disqualification" among the world powers.

U. S. Anxiously Awaits Big Japanese Offensive

(Associated Press.)

The beginning of Japan's long-expected offensive against entrenched Chinese in the Shanghai area was awaited anxiously yesterday by Washington officials.

Code clerks and officials of the State, Navy and War Departments were on duty in full force watching results of her probable fight to a finish, but more closely concerned with effects of the battle on Americans in the International Settlement.

No hope of truce was indicated in official messages. Spasmodic shelling continued, and terror was reported to be spreading in the International Settlement.

Negotiations going on directly between Gen. Tsai Ting-Kai, commanding the Chinese forces, and Lieut. Gen. Kenkichi Uyeda, of the Japanese, have apparently reached an impasse. The Japanese insist upon the withdrawal of the Chinese 20 miles beyond the Chapei area. Gen. Tsai says his 30,000 soldiers are willing to die rather than retreat while the Japanese retain the positions they now hold.

Both the Japanese and the Chinese are in an awkward situation, and, in well-informed circles in Shanghai, the opinion prevails it will be difficult for them to avoid a fight to a finish, which would mean grave danger for those in the Settlement.

It is believed to be doubtful whether the Chinese can win, but the Nineteenth army has achieved so much glory through its stubborn defense of Chapei and the Woosung forts that it can not refuse to continue the struggle. This army is largely Cantonese, and domestic politics enters into the situation very largely. Northern military leaders and armies would be harshly critical were the Cantonese to refuse a decisive battle.

There is much speculation in diplomatic circles as to what action Japan will take in case it drives the Chinese forces out of the Chinese territory surrounding the International Settlement.

For a long time the belief has prevailed in Shanghai that Japan desired to have the Chapei district as a Japanese concession. Before the present clash in Shanghai there was considerable foreign support for the pressure Japan had put upon the Chinese to have Chapei turned into a foreign concession, but recent events have apparently changed this sentiment.

"100 Good Turns Daily" Is Scout Motto in China

Shanghai, Feb. 14 (A.P.).—The Boy Scout motto, "Do a good turn daily," might as well be, "Do a hundred good turns daily," as far as Boy Scouts of Shanghai are concerned during the present emergency.

When the Sino-Japanese hostilities began some three weeks ago the Scouts were among the first to volunteer their services to the Shanghai volunteer corps. Since then they have been busy day and night serving as messengers, guides, clerks, telephone operators and orderlies, and doing light patrol duty. They have also assisted in the relief of suffering refugees.

The local Scout council, consisting of 750 boys, is unique inasmuch as it includes 20 nationalities. The 25 American Scouts are in the midst of activities.

23 KILLED IN RIOTS IN 2 INDIAN TOWNS

75 Houses Pillaged When Hindus Suffer Most in Disturbances.

Srinigar, India, Feb. 14 (A.P.).—Fifteen Hindus and 3 Moslems were killed and 75 houses were pillaged and burned in communal disturbances at Mirpur today.

At Dharmsi five Moslems were killed when a Moslem mob attacked a police party escorting Hindu refugees in the city to safety.

The bed of the Whelum River was the scene of a fierce Moslem attack in another communal disturbance.

Although active rebellion has been suppdessed in many districts by the presence of troops, the situation continued incendiary.

Rumors are current that the government may create a council of ministers in Kashmir state containing a majority of British officials, thus establishing a virtual regency for the present Hindu maharajah and giving the government control of the state, one of the richest in India.

Lahore, India, Feb. 14 (A.P.).—Sirdar Sardul Singh, president of the All-India National Congress, was arrested at Shahdara Salon today while en route to Peshawar and brought back to Lahore, in the government's antinationalist campaign.

The Bengal Moslem leader, Maulana Kalam Azad, was nominated president to succeed him.

Daniels Refuses to Seek Governor Nomination

Raleigh, N. C., Feb. 14 (A.P.).—Expressing the opinion he could best serve the people of his State as a newspaper editor, Josephus Daniels, editor of the News and Observer, today refused to seek the Democratic nomination for governor.

The formal statement removed his name from political gossip. For months he had been regarded as a very probably gubernatorial candidate.

"OPEN WAR" GRIPS ORIENT, LEAGUE INQUIRERS REPORT

involved in the calling of a meeting of the assembly. Significance was attached to this in some quarters.

(Copyright, 1932, by the Associated Press.)

Shanghai, Monday, Feb. 15 (A.P.).—Japanese soldiers streamed ashore in Shanghai again today to swell thousands awaiting the greatest battle yet in the warfare with China.

They landed from four new troop ships that arrived off the Japanese docks in the Whangpoo River almost on the heels of a horde of Nipponese troops disembarked by seven transports yesterday.

Japanese naval headquarters had announced earlier that five or six transports were on the way with possibly 10,000 troops.

The four ships, decks bulging with soldiers in field uniforms, presumably belonged to this flotilla. Not a single Chinese gun spoke as the vessels, under a convoy of destroyers, passed the Chinese forts at Woosung, zone of recent battle, at the confluence of the Whangpoo and Yangtze Rivers, 16 miles northwest of Shanghai.

Chapei Bombed Again.

Three Japanese airplanes appeared over stricken Chapei, Chinese section of the city converted days ago into a battleground, and again bombed it at about the time the new troopships arrived.

Except for a brief exchange of artillery and machine gun fire over Chapei early in the morning and the later bombing, Japanese headquarters said everything was quiet on the Chapei-Woosung front. But Japanese planes, flying over Woosung, reported the discovery of as many as 500 Chinese soldiers moving from Woosung along the south bank of the Yangtze River.

Japanese officials interpreted this as indicating that the Chinese were beginning to retreat from that area. The reported movement, however, lacked confirmation in other quarters.

Peace Efforts Failure.

A battle that would make hostilities around Shanghai during the past three weeks look like a mere skirmish, appeared inevitable today as both Chinese and Japanese massed troops and more troops all along the Chapei-Woosung battle front.

The coming of bloodshed on a large scale appeared all the more certain as feverish efforts of neutral mediators to avoid it met with failure at every turn. The American, British and French ministers spent all yesterday seeking a loophole which might open the way for some kind of negotiations, but achieved no tangible results.

Influential Chinese themselves held numerous conferences, trying to conceive some possible peace plan, but the early hours today found them most pessimistic. Among the conferees were T. M. Soong and M. H. Kung, both former ministers in the former Nanking government.

Equipment Being Unloaded.

Although the Japanese completed landing of soldiers from seven transports at Woosung and in the International Settlement yesterday, large gangs of stevedores were still busy today unloading equipment obviously intended for "a big push."

The Japanese concealed the number and disposition of troops along the battle line, but military observers estimated they had at least 25,000 men and ample modern equipment ready for battle. The Chinese, meanwhile, continued to dig into their positions and predict that they would die before they gave in.

The Chinese manpower was apparently equal to the Japanese, or even greater, but their equipment, observers believed, was far inferior.

Out of the holds of the Japanese transports came tanks, howitzers, light and heavy artillery, aerial bombs and cavalry equipment.

Ponies and Mules Brought Ashore.

Many Mongolian ponies and mules which apparently were intended to give the Japanese greater mobility in the marshy ground in the Shanghai region, where tanks might be handicapped, were brought ashore.

American ministerial officials today said they would call Washington's attention to the landing of thousands of Japanese troops in the International Settlement. London, Paris, Rome, and other capitals will also be informed by their representatives of the landing.

It was said the Japanese gave the British Consul General J. F. Breman a definite promise last week that further Japanese troops if brought ashore would not disembark in the International Settlement. At that time the Japanese Consul General, Kuramatsu Muri, said no landing of troops in the settlement was contemplated.

Latest Word Contradiction.

The latest word from the Japanese officially as to their intentions on the Chapei-Woosung battlefront was contradictory. Early yesterday Lieut. Gen. Kenkichi Uyeda, commander of all the Japanese land forces, denied that a big Japanese offensive was at hand and explained that the sole object in coming to Shanghai of large troop forces was to make the place safe. He added that he still hoped for peaceful settlement involving voluntary withdrawal of the Chinese "a safe distance."

Late last night Admiral S. Shimada, commanding the naval forces of the Japanese, used his doubled fist to emphasize his views. He saw correspondents aboard the flagship and said that in view of the Chinese attitude it probably would be necessary to "strike them out."

The admiral intimated that if the Chinese troops did not voluntarily withdraw the Japanese would drive them back perhaps 30 miles from the boundaries of the international area. A narrower zone, he pointed out, would make possible surprise forays from the Chinese, thus endangering the safety of Japanese in Shanghai.

Spain May Deport White Slavers.

Barcelona, Spain, Feb. 14 (A.P.).—About 30 foreigners were implicated by police today in a ring of white slave traffickers. The government expected to deport them. Meanwhile the police continued their roundup of the alleged gang which has been operating here.

HOME LOAN LEADERS ARRIVE TO URGE BILL

Ward B. Whitlock and Others Will Testify Today at Senate Hearing.

By THOMAS M. CAHILL.

Arriving here yesterday, Ward B. Whitlock, Springfield (Ill.) first vice president United States Building and Loan League, said that one and two year mortgage lenders are trying to block the home loan bank bill, fourth point in President Hoover's relief program, on the unfounded assertion that it will result in overbuilding of homes.

Mr. Whitlock was first to arrive of 25 building and loan executives, including other officials of the league, who will be here today to testify in favor of the bill at resumed hearings before the Senate subcommittee on currency and banking, chairmaned by Senator Watson (Republican), of Indiana.

Associations with more than $1,000,000,000 in home loans are represented by the group, which will favor the bill in hearings. Mr. Whitlock explained that these are amortized home mortgages representing the investment of millions of building and loan savers' capital in contrast to the mortgages handled by brokers whose principals may call the home loan at any time they wish.

"The essential purpose of the bill is to relieve the home owners who can not get refinancing for their straight mortgages which have come due," said Mr. Whitlock.

Those who will arrive for testimony on the bill today are William E. Best, Pittsburgh, Pa., president of the league; H. F. Cellarius, Cincinnati, Ohio, its secretary-treasurer; F. M. Boone, South Bend, Ind., A. F. Ellfeldt, Kansas City, Mo., F. S. Cannon, Indianapolis, Ind., William C. Ermon, New Orleans, La., John Eden Farwell, Geneva, N. Y., A. R. Mr. Hoskinson was born in Darnstown, Md., and came to Washington to make his home about 18 years ago. He had been associated with the bank of which he was head for more than 30 years. He was purchasing agent of the Farm Bureau Supply Co., of Rockville, Md., and president of the Rotary Club there.

Yield Nothing to Japan, Plea of Chinese Party

Honan Fu (Temporary Capital of China), Monday, Feb. 15 (A.P.).—The Kuomintang, nationalist party of China today urged that "no grounds be yielded to the Japanese."

The central executive committee of the party sent an urgent telegram to the executive Yuan and the military council declaring that the Japanese proposal to demilitarize the "principal ports" of China, was made with a view to subjugating the nation. The proposal, the telegram said, was absolutely unacceptable.

hotel, some of it spreading through the interior.

It was feared for a time that the flames might spread to the new steel pier, 200 feet away. Windows of the steel pier were broken by the heat, but firemen prevented the flames from reaching it.

The blaze illuminated the entire beach front and thousands of persons gathered from 11 parts of the city. Many motorists bound for New York after the week-end holiday were delayed because the turning in of a general alarm halts all traffic in the city so fire apparatus may move unobstructed.

G.O.P. TO LOSE WETS' FUNDS, FESS IS TOLD

Contributors Desiring Repeal to Swing to Democrats, Pitcairn Warns.

Philadelphia, Feb. 14 (A.P.).—Raymond Pitcairn, spokesman for an organization of Republicans who oppose prohibition, telegraphed Senator Simeon D. Fess today that "substantial contributors" to Republican campaign funds of the past will contribute to the Democratic party this year unless the Republicans declare for repeal. He urged Fess, chairman of the Republican national committee, to "look into this."

The telegram was signed by Pitcairn, a Philadelphia attorney, "for the Republican citizens' committee against national prohibition." It read in part:

"I have been informed that Arthur Curtiss James, said to have contributed $50,000 to President Coolidge's campaign fund, is giving his campaign contribution to the Democrats this year because of our party's stand on prohibition. May I suggest you look into this?

"I can furnish you with a list of other substantial contributors whose gifts will be to the Democrats for the wet cause. The Republican citizens' committee against national prohibition has prevented other Republican contributors from expressing a like intent pending the outcome of our determined efforts to bring the party into line with public conviction before it is too late.

"A year ago last November 80 per cent of the members of the Union League of Philadelphia voted for the Democratic candidate for governor for the simple reason that the voters against prohibition in Pennsylvania held the balance of power. A lot of water has since gone over the dam and the electorate is much wetter today."

Mr. James could not be reached at his New York home.

Boy Finds Mother Shot, Gun Nearby

Prince Georges County Woman Held Likely to Recover.

Mrs. Wilton Dulay, 36 years old, of Springfield, Prince Georges County, Md., was brought to Casualty Hospital yesterday by the Glendale fire rescue squad suffering from a gunshot wound in the left chest. She is the wife of a railroad engineer and has two children.

Rescue squad members said last night that they had been summoned by neighbors. The woman was said to have been found in a room at the Dulay house by her 11-year-old son, a shotgun nearby. It was said that she had been depressed lately because of economic and other worries.

Casualty Hospital physicians did not deem Mrs. Dulay's condition serious.

his arrival that a wave of discussion over the possibility of his nomination had been started by his announcement, when he sailed, that he did not consider the League of Nations an issue in this year's campaign.

"But the league must go under the head of public affairs and politics," he said with a smile, "and I'm afraid it will have to be one of the things I can not discuss now."

He paused and lit the pipe he invariably carries, then said eagerly:

"But let me tell you about Mexico. It was my first trip down there and I think it is one of the most fascinating and romantic spots I ever have seen.

"Of course they're having their economic troubles, but they are not as serious as ours because Mexico is not as industrialized as the United States."

As soon as the questioning had turned from politics to the beauty of Mexico, Baker seemed reluctant to bring the interview to an end.

"Sorry I can't talk of these other matters," he said, as he hurried to an upper deck to pose for newsreel and newspaper photographers.

Shortly after the liner docked he and Mrs. Baker departed for Cleveland.

AMATEUR PREDICTS CLEAR FEBRUARY 22

despite the forecast of the United States Weather Bureau that it will rain.

This amateur weather man's prediction is given further strength by his statement that in nine years of forecasting weather the seven-day period conditions have a tendency to recur. Weather history, it seems, has a way of repeating itself, just as other history does. However, Mr. Browne's deductions are not entirely on past occurrences. They involve a thorough study of present weather conditions and their behavior throughout the country. His methods embrace the travel of cold waves and the movements of high and low pressure areas. He is also guided by solar radiation, oceanic temperatures and the influence of the moon.

He points out that the present cold wave is bringing the temperature for Washington down to normal from an abnormal warm spell.

The United States Weather Bureau, in the outlook for the coming week, forecasts general weather conditions as far as Saturday. A slowly rising temperature for the Middle Atlantic area beginning Friday is predicted. Slightly colder weather is forecast for the Ohio Valley and Tennessee, an area that influences weather conditions in this section, according to Mr. Browne. The forecaster at the United States Weather Bureau, however, regards the Ohio Valley and Tennessee area as an isolated one, having no connection at this early date on the weather situation in the District and environs.

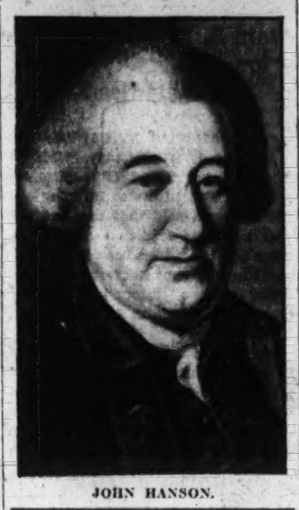
Hanson of Maryland Is Held First President by Author

Posthumous Book Holds Washington Was Second National Chief.



JOHN HANSON.

New York, Feb. 14 (A.P.).—In March, 1781, Maryland signed the articles of confederation, and in the same month Congress was congratulated by Gen. George Washington "upon the completion of the confederation of the United States."

A few months later John Hanson, Maryland representative, was elected and designated President of the United States—eight years before the election of George Washington, making Hanson in the opinion of Seymour Wemyss Smith, historian, our first President.

Mr. Smith's book, "John Hanson," published posthumously tomorrow, shows how Hanson and Daniel Carroll, the other Maryland representative, refused to sign the articles of confederation until all the States agreed to cede to the Union all rights in the Western lands they claimed.

Except for Maryland, Mr. Smith says, the other States desired, in effect, to perpetuate themselves as independent nations with territories. This Hanson and Carrol refused to allow and by their steadfast insistence on an undivided nation really founded the basic organization of the United States.

Mr. Smith cites much correspondence and incident in which Hanson is referred to as President, including a speech by George Washington himself a few days after Hanson's election.

It is true, Mr. Smith says, that Washington was the first President under the Constitution as we now have it, but the present Constitution contained large excerpts from the Articles of Confederation which Mr. Smith calls the "first Constitution" and was changed to the present document to save the wealthy from taxation.

Historians, Mr. Smith says, which have buried Hanson in their glorification of George Washington, seem to have forgotten the history of the United States in the eight years preceding the election of Washington.

As a matter of fact during that time and particularly during John Hanson's presidency, Mr. Smith points out, the First National Bank was formed and the postal system orginated. Mr. Hanson's government contracted foreign loans, received and sent ambassadors and obtained official recognition of other governments.

Those, says Mr. Smith, who point to the difference in the way Hanson and Washington were elected, neglect to consider that presidents after Washington also were chosen differently, and that Mr. Hoover, for instance, was elected in an entirely different manner from earlier presidents.

The articles of confederation were dropped because Alexander Hamilton and some wealthy friends opposed the article which would allow national taxes to be based on property, the then principal evidence of wealth. Such taxes were not levied up to about 20 years ago, when income taxes were adopted, reverting to the principles of the "First Constitution."

Mr. Smith died January 4 in New York City.

King Carol's Dethronement Urged by Roumanian Chief

Bucharest, Roumania, Feb. 14 (U.P.).—An article calling for dethronement of King Carol II was published in the newspaper Indreptarea today under the signature of Gen. Alexander Averescu, leader of the People's party and former premier.

The article declared that the present situation in Roumania is parallel to the one existing in 1886, before the overthrow of Prince Cuza, who was one of the rulers of Roumania prior to formation of the kingdom under King Carol I.

Gen. Averescu is publisher of the Indreptarea. He suggested that history should repeat itself in the present situation and that Carol II should be overthrown.

There were several suggestions of governmental difficulties in the last week, including the sudden recall of Nicholas Titulescu, former foreign minister and head of the delegation to the Geneva disarmament conference. Titulescu, who is president of the League of Nations Assembly, was recalled last Thursday, at which time there were rumors of a possible government crisis.

King Carol has faced many serious difficulties in Roumania since his return from exile in 1930 to seize the throne from his young son, who is now Crown Prince Michael. Like other countries, Roumania has been forced to meet financial difficulties which have been particularly severe in the Balkans. Gen. Averescu, as leader of the People's party, commands only 10 of 388 votes in the lower chamber of Parliament, but he is influential in political affairs.

the death of James Vaugh, a Republican leader, who was alleged to have been beaten while under arrest. The verdict was that he died of natural causes.

Reynolds had been at Carrick-on-Shannon, where he attended a political meeting. He started back to his home in Ballinamore, but stopped in Foxfield for electioneering purposes. His constituency was Sligo Leitrim.

The election has aroused bitter political feelings throughout the Free State because the vote is expected to give Ireland an opportunity to decide whether she prefers allegiance to the English crown or a renewal of her 700-year struggle for complete separation.

President Cosgrave, foe of Eamon de Valera, head of the opposition Fianna Fail, made his final campaign speech in Dublin shortly after the shooting. Cosgrave declared that the Fianna Fail party had never lost contact with the element favoring armed opposition to the Free State government.

vote for an extension of President von Hindenburg's term. He criticized Gen. Wilhelm Groener, minister of defense, saying Gen. Groener had shown partiality toward the Hitlerites, who were "making a farce of constitutional legality."

"The iron front will not only smash Hitler, but will see to it that Germany becomes a real republic," said Karl Hoeltermann, leader of the Reichsbanner organization. Various republican factions recently formed themselves into an "iron front" against Hitler's National Socialists, or Nazis.

Republican dissatisfaction with the government's policy toward Hitler is expected to be voiced in the course of the week, when Hoeltermann confers with Gen. Groener in the presence of Chancellor Bruening and demands an explanation of the defense minister's recent charges that the Reichsbanner was fomenting civil war.

2 Baton Rouge Tourists Expire in Mexico City

Mexico City, Feb. 14 (A.P.).—W. P. Connell, banker, and Anthony Doherty, Louisiana State senator, both of Baton Rouge, La., died suddenly early today from heart attacks after a day of sightseeing here.

Mr. Connell, who was 57 years old, was president of the Louisiana National Bank, and Mr. Doherty, 58 years old, was a hardware merchant as well as a State senator. Their deaths were attributed by physicians to the high altitude of Mexico City coupled with a strenuous tour of the city's sights.

DEMOCRATIC CLOUDS THREATEN HARMONY

Open Issue Drawn Between Roosevelt and Others High in Party.

(Associated Press.)

More and more swiftly the storm clouds are gathering across the face of that long-cherished dream of Democratic leaders for party harmony in 1932.

An open issue has been drawn at last between the leading presidential candidate, Franklin D. Roosevelt, and influential elements of the party's high command. The actual selection of delegates is beginning, and retreat is no longer considered a possibility by either side. The Democrats of the Nation are about to be asked to stand and be counted.

The issue, for the moment, turns on the question whether delegates to the June convention should be instructed, or left free to make their own choice of a nominee.

Several days ago Jouett Shouse, who manages Democratic national headquarters, said the latter course would be best in view of changing conditions. Saturday, at Albany, Gov. Roosevelt said that Shouse's plan would disfranchise the rank and file and leave the decision to the trade and barter of a handful of powerful leaders.

Has Not Questioned.

Both Shouse and the national chairman, John J. Raskob, have disclaimed any intention to stop Roosevelt or any other candidate. These assurances Roosevelt has in no way questioned. Yet he is aware that his own candidacy, being the only one gathering delegates on a Nation-wide scale, has most at stake between now and convention time.

No one who has talked with the leaders on both sides is likely to underestimate the depth and breadth of this party division.

The Roosevelt forces, with James A. Farley, of New York, as their chief coordinator, are preparing for intensive action. In many States, immediate steps are being taken to organize definitely local efforts which heretofore have been somewhat scattered. In Washington, senators from a score of States have been summoned into conference to stop the stop-Roosevelt movement.

Uninstructed Delegates.

On the oppotsite side, a half-dozen other candidates are seeking either to wean away States previously claimed for Roosevelt, or obtain the selection of uninstructed delegates. Although he has declared himself no candidate, Alfred E. Smith is the choice of delegate slates to be entered in several States. The first delegation to be chosen since this movement really began was selected Saturday in Louisiana, and it is uninstructed.

Conferences on behalf of Roosevelt continued here yesterday, centering about Homer S. Cummings, of Connecticut, one of several who have undertaken to marshal votes for the New York Governor. Other Roosevelt leaders will hold similar conferences here later.

A few preliminary tests will be made at the ballot box, in March. Roosevelt is expected to match strength with Smith in New Hampshire, and with Gov. Murray of Oklahoma in North Dakota. A few other nonprimary States are to make decisions by convention. The real decision, however, will not be reached until April, or possibly later, when the big Eastern States take their choice.

While the Democratic curve of rivalry and discord is rising, Republican troubles over the nomination seem to be flattening out. The friends of Hiram Johnson, most talked of as a possible opponent of President Hoover, do not now think he will run.

Stolen Auto Is Recovered In Half an Hour; Man Held

The sharp eye of a Montgomery County policeman, on duty at Rockville, Md., yesterday afternoon, saved the day for John L. King, an insurance agent, of Cedar Grove, Md.

King, en route to visit friends, stopped at a roadside store to make a purchase. He parked his machine at the curb, only to return and find it gone. The license numbers were telephoned to police, and King postponed his visit to return home and await results.

He didn't wait long. Less than half an hour later Policeman John Butts, attached to Rockville Headquarters, sighted the car on the Frederick pike. He overtook it after a short chase and arrested Paul Bose, 24 years old, who said he lived in Pennsylvania.

The machine was returned to its owner and Bose was held in the Rockville Jail on a charge of larceny.

REPUBLICANS FORM CLUB AT BETHESDA

Charles S. Moore, of Somerset, Elected President of New Group.

A meeting held recently at the clubhouse of the Woman's Club of Bethesda, called for the purpose of amalgamating every section of the suburban population of Montgomery County into a federation of all Republican clubs of the county, formed a permanent organization, the Bethesda Republican Club.

Charles S. Moore of Somerset, who with Fred W. Page, of Crest View, and Harry Latterner, of Friendship Heights, called the meeting, said in regard to the new club, "We have no time to discuss issues here tonight but we hope that within a month we will have a working organization which will make itself felt in the coming campaign.

"We can carry Montgomery County if we will work together and lay aside our personal interest for the party's success as a whole. The Seventh voting district is Republican, and if we get the votes out and keep them lined up for our candidates, we can carry it this fall. Every Republican should register as such and we should do all we can to persuade those who have registered as independents or Democrats to change their registration this year so we will have a solid Republican vote.

"There is probably no better political organization in the State than the Democratic organization in Montgomery County, and we should therefore strive to make this club the strongest Republican club in the State of Maryland."

The following officers were elected after the club was organized: Charles S. Moore of Somerset, president; Fred W. Page, of Crest View, Henry Latterner, of Friendship Heights, Mrs. John A. Holmes, of Rockville Pike, and Mrs. John A. Flemming, of Drummond, vice president; Robert L. Hughes, of Friendship Heights, secretary; J. C. Newell, of Woodmont, treasurer.

The next meeting will be held February 27 at the Masonic Hall, Bethesda, when an executive committee will be selected.

3 MEETINGS SLATED BY ARLINGTON BOARD

Week's Activities Will Set Record; To Act on County Finances.

ARLINGTON COUNTY BUREAU OF THE POST,
Tel. Cla. 309. Clarendon, Va.

The county board of Arlington County will set a record for number of meetings held during one week, with three scheduled for this week. The first one will be held this morning at the courthouse at 8 o'clock, when the board will approve and sign the monthly pay roll and check all current bills.

With the changing of meetings from the 1st and 15th of each month to the first and third Saturdays and not changing the date of the pay roll, the holding of this special meeting is necessary, as the law provides that all pay rolls and bills must be paid during a session of the board, according to the chairman, Harry A. Fellows.

The second meeting will be held on Friday evening at the courthouse, when there will be a public hearing on the question of changing the county zoning ordinances in a section of Lyon Village along Courthouse road from residential A to residential B, and at Chain Bridge, where the same change is sought.

The third meeting will be the regular semimonthly meeting of the board and will be held at the courthouse on Saturday morning at 8 o'clock.

County Manager Roy S. Braden says that at this meeting he will submit to the board the completed financial statement of the county as of December 31, 1931.

Bids on the work of extending the county water mains into Windsor Heights will be opened by the board at this meeting.

Cooperating with the National Federation of Business and Professional Woman's Clubs in aiding the unemployed, the Arlington County Business and Professional Woman's Club, through its public relations committee, of which Mrs. Katherine G. Cohen is chairman, has completed plans whereby the membership of the club, numbering more than 50, will provide one-half day's work during the month for unemployed women. Other members of the club assisting the chairman are Mrs. Mae E. Jacobs and Mrs. Rachel White.

Mrs. Cohen announces that there will be a benefit card party this evening at the home of Mrs. Jacobs, at Ballston.

Plans to participate in the Statewide campaign against diphtheria are being prepared by the Arlington County health department, according to County Health Officer Dr. P. M. Chichester. Dr. Chichester says the drive in Arlington County will get under way this week.

A report compiled by Dr. Chichester shows that the number of diphtheria cases in Arlington County during the past eight years has been exceedingly low, due mainly, he says, to the work which the department has accomplished among the children of preschool age.

BOY TO BE CHARGED WITH SLAYING GIRL

Feeling Runs High Against Confessed Murderer of Philadelphia Child.

Philadelphia, Feb. 14 (A.P.).—Willie Brown, 16-year-old Negro who, police say, is deficient mentally, will be arraigned on a murder charge tomorrow, charged with the assault and slaying of 7-year-old Dorothy Lutz on February 3. Brown confessed last night, police said, that he lured the child to a vacant house near her home with a new skipping rope. He lived in the neighborhood.

Police quoted Brown as saying he made up his mind to commit the crime three days before Dorothy disappeared, when he saw her playing in the street.

"I couldn't help it," he was quoted as saying. "I watched her from my house every day. On that Wednesday I saw my chance. I had a new skipping rope with handles on it. I offered it to her.

"When she reached out her hand I moved away toward the house next door and she followed me. I went into the cellar and when she came down the cellar steps I grabbed her. I carried her up to the second floor."

After that Brown's story became incoherent.

Feeling ran high today in the "melting pot" neighborhood where Dorothy lived but there were no attempts at violence.

Candidate For West Point Wins 931.5 Points of 1,000

Washington Youth Passes Entrance Tests With Exceptional Mark.

Charles B. Stewart, 17, 1705 Upshur street northwest, one of three candidates appointed for entrance to West Point last week, scored what is probably the highest mark ever made in a similar District examination. Out of a possible 1,000 points the young man made 931.5.

The appointee is the son of Lieut.-Col. G. H. Stewart of the U. S. Army. He graduated in 1930 from Dunahau High School, at Honolulu, where his father was stationed in the Ordinance Department of the Army. Since his arrival in Washington last September, the youth has been attending Millard West Point Preparatory School.

The elder Stewart was graduated from West Point in the class of 1902. For the past three years he has been stationed in Hawaii. During the war he was assigned to the munitions works at Springfield, Mass., and at present he is stationed at the Army Industrial College here.

Alleged Death-Car Driver Jailed Here

Police of Arlington Turn Over Maxwell F. Strunk as Inquest Is Set.

Arlington County police yesterday arrested and turned over to authorities here Maxwell Fergus Strunk, a Department of Agriculture employe, who is said to have been the driver of the car that knocked down and fatally injured Walter Fox, 47 years old, colored, of 2267 Ninth street, Saturday night.

Strunk was said to have fled the scene of the accident and eluded the pursuit of a number of citizens. His arrest was brought about through the license tag numbers on his car, which were jotted down by a witness. An inquest will be held at the District Morgue tomorrow morning in Fox's death, and Strunk is being held meanwhile.

CAPT. WILEY'S FUNERAL.

Services for Confederate Veteran Will Be Held This Afternoon.

Funeral services for Capt. Robert Wiley, 92, of Fairfax, Va., who died Saturday afternoon at his home, will be held this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock in the Southern Methodist Church, on Payne street, in Fairfax. Capt. Wiley, a Confederate veteran and county official for almost half a century, and commander of the Marr Camp of Confederate Veterans, died following a long illness.

It was first announced that the services this afternoon would be private at the late residence, but because of his prominence it was decided last night to transfer them to church. The services will be conducted by the Rev. Royal A. Rice, pastor of the church, and the Rev. J. C. Thrasher, a former pastor. Interment will take place in the Confederate section of the Fairfax Cemetery.

MRS. WILLIAM RIVES DIES AT RESIDENCE

Long Illness Fatal to Sister of Dr. P. M. Rhinelander; Burial Tomorrow.

Mrs. William C. Rives, sister of the Right Rev. Philip M. Rhinelander, warden of the College of Preachers, Washington Cathedral, died yesterday in her home at 1702 Rhode Island avenue northwest, after an illness of several weeks. The office for the burial of the dead will be read for her in Bethlehem Chapel of Washington Cathedral tomorrow at 11 a. m.

In the passing of Mrs. Rives, Washington society and church circles lost one who had been prominent here for the past three decades, since coming to Washington from New York more than 30 years ago. Mrs. Rives was a member of the well-known Rhinelander family, of New York, and was the daughter of the late Frederick William and Frances Davenport Rhinelander, of New York City. Her husband, Dr. William Cabell Rives, is one of the leading laymen in the Diocese of Washington.

Dr. and Mrs. Rives were close personal friends of the late Right Rev. Henry Yates Satterlee, first Bishop of Washington, an association which began at the time Bishop Satterlee was rector of Calvary Church in New York City. Soon after the consecration of Dr. Satterlee as Bishop of Washington, Dr. and Mrs. Rives established residence in Washington in 1896 in order that they might continue the association with him begun while he was at Calvary Church.

Mrs. Rives was chairman of the Washington Cathedral committee of the National Cathedral Association, of which Dr. Rives is secretary, and had frequently opened her home for meetings and lectures in behalf of the cathedral undertaking. During the last year she had been giving special attention to the Cathedral's emergency employment program, which is being prosecuted by Bishop James E. Freeman and the trustees to help provide work for as many individuals as possible on Mount St. Alban.

Among Mrs. Rives' other interests were the Home for Incurables, where she served on the board of managers and executive committee; the missionary work of the Protestant Episcopal Church, with special reference to home missions in the mountains of Virginia, and various other church and philanthropic organizations.

Mrs. Rives is survived, in addition to her husband, by two brothers, Bishop Rhinelander and Frederic W. Rhinelander, of New York City, and two sisters, Mrs. Morgan Jones, whose husband is canon of the cathedral at Bangor, Wales, and Miss Alice K. Rhinelander, of New York.

Resume of "Capture" Of Hawaiian Islands

Honolulu, Feb. 14 (A.P.).—The 1932 Army, Navy and Marine Corps war maneuvers in brief:

Enemy fleet of 62 ships attacked the Island of Oahu intending to capture Honolulu and Pearl Harbor Naval Base. The enemy launched an attack with 220 airplanes, bombing airfields, ammunition dumps and theoretically crippling coast defense guns.

The defenders, 17,000 strong, using 104 planes and land guns, successfully gave battle for six days.

The enemy succeeded in landing on the islands.

Army defense airmen flew 26,000 miles. One forced landing was made, but none injured.

Army officers said the maneuvers demonstrated the need of a larger number of troops here to guarantee the security of Hawaii.

C. P. Franciscus, Postal Association Head, Dies

New York, Feb. 14 (A.P.).—C. P. Franciscus, 59, national president of the United National Association of Post Office Clerks and active in the United States postal service since 1890, died last night at his home of cerebral hemorrhage.

He is survived by two sons, Alfred, a doctor, and Howard, a lawyer, both of New York. Funeral services will be held Wednesday from the Church of St. Anne. He had been national president of the association since 1916.

A 90 million dollar reason

A SECTION OF A LIGGETT & MYERS TOBACCO WAREHOUSE WHERE TOBACCOS ARE STORED TO AGE AND MELLOW

why Chesterfields are Better!

Just think what this means for Chesterfield smokers. It means that the larger part of 90 million dollars is invested in Domestic and Turkish tobaccos that are being properly aged in Nature's way, and cured so as to make them sweeter and milder.

CHESTERFIELD tobacco is packed in wooden casks, each containing about 1,000 pounds and stored for two years in modern, up-to-date warehouses.

These warehouses, if placed end-to-end, would be about four miles in length. From floor to ceiling they are filled with these casks of fine tobacco, ageing in Nature's slow but sure way.

It takes a lot of money to make a good cigarette—money to buy good tobaccos and money to age them properly.

CHESTERFIELDS are milder, and taste better . . . there's a 90 million dollar reason why! Just try them!

AN EFFECTIVE SALES TAX.

As the present economic situation is more carefully studied by executive and congressional agencies and citizens generally, it becomes evident that the Federal deficit can not be overcome by heavily taxing the rich and increasing levies upon luxuries. There are not enough rich, particularly since the depression, and there are not enough luxuries purchased at any time to provide needed funds. Balancing the national budget is a matter of prime importance for the welfare of this country. Uncertainty with regard to taxation, and Government issues to be floated, constitutes one of the greatest drawbacks to resumption of industrial activity. Until capital and industry can make definite estimates of fixed charges and demands upon capital it is impossible to move forward.

The growing sentiment in favor of increasing the Federal income to meet expenditures without delay is a healthy sign. The various measures destined to release credit can be supplemented in no such effective manner as by the passage of tax measures by Congress that will adequately take care of the national deficit, no matter what the amount may be. The citizens of this country are today paying only a fraction of the amounts exacted in various European nations. No one anticipates additional tax burdens with enthusiasm, but increases will not be ruinous, particularly if they are levied so as to be paid in the easiest possible manner.

That the general sales tax provides the simplest, most equitable manner of raising large amounts of money has been demonstrated by the experience of a number of nations. The nightmare of tax payments lies in the fact that as a rule they have to be paid in large amounts at the end of the year. As a rule individuals and families are not provident; they do not operate their private expenditures under a budget system; incomes are largely dissipated as they are received, and taxes bulking large after the year's salary has been spent mean an extraordinary effort, or borrowing money to pay them.

All this is avoided by a sales tax. The taxpayer does not have to keep any books or worry about a debt at the end of twelve months that is difficult to pay. Every day, out of his cash purchases, he contributes a mite that is in no case a hardship. It is a cent or a fraction of a cent, added to the cost of what he buys; his contribution to the cost of government is so small that it is not noticed. But a sales tax to be effective must be general. It must ask a contribution from all citizens in proportion to their expenditures. And in no other way can this contribution be exacted so equitably and automatically as through an invisible tax that is added in minute fractions to the daily outlay.

There will be the usual outcry from the politicians that the poor man's necessities must not be taxed. No one will benefit so much from the return of prosperity and the maintenance of the American standard of living as the working man. Nothing will help so much to restore those very things as a balanced budget. Every citizen should contribute a just share toward the support of his Government. The sales tax gives him assurance that he will not be obliged to give more than his just share.

EUROPE FACES THE MUSIC.

Encouraging news from Europe is contributing to the feeling of buoyancy that has swept over the United States during the last few days. Great Britain and France have agreed, with the approval of other interested governments, that the postponed reparations conference shall be held at Lausanne in June. This agreement revives hope that Europe has decided to face the music without trying any further to pass the buck to Uncle Sam.

A dispatch from Geneva says that the Lausanne discussions will be based on the Young plan and that the allied debts to the United States will not be mentioned. From London comes a report that the conference will attempt to agree upon "a lasting settlement of the questions raised in the report of the Basel experts and on measures necessary to solve the other economic and financial difficulties which are responsible for and may prolong the world depression." Indications are that the Lausanne meeting will be an European economic conference.

Since the United States will not take part in the sessions, it may be assumed that no effort will be made to involve the so-called war debts in the negotiations. All Europe knows what the attitude of the United States is, and that it would be futile to attempt to link reparations and the post-war debts. If the former allies have really decided to sit down at a council table with Germany and work out the reparations muddle on a factual and reasonable basis, they have taken a long step toward the restoration of confidence.

The last reparations conference scheduled to be held at Lausanne was postponed because of the unwillingness of France to make any concession to Germany unless a similar concession were made to France by the United States. In view of the fact that France has suffered less than any large nation from the depression and because of the complete separation of the French debt from reparations, this attitude was most unreasonable. Apparently France now recognizes that Europe must solve the reparations question in its own way. The public has not been informed of the full agreement for the Lausanne gathering, but if the surface indications may be relied upon, a more constructive policy will be pursued.

ORGANIZED ECONOMY.

One reason why Congress has difficulty in effecting substantial economies in Government organization is because the problems of Government are seldom studied comprehensively. Small items of expense are cut off here and there, but other items are added to take their place. Congress has rarely undertaken the work of reorganizing the system of departments and commissions.

Senator Robinson, Democratic leader, proposes that Congress shall study the entire system. He has introduced a concurrent resolution to create a joint commission, with three members from the Senate and three from the House, to determine the "best and most practicable means and methods of reducing governmental expenditures," and "to ascertain and report what offices, agencies, bureaus, boards and commissions of the National Government may be reduced, consolidated, or abolished without substantial detriment to the public interest."

There is a broad field in which such a commission might work. Some branches of the Government are continued in operation from year to year, even after their functions have dwindled away to nothing. Many loopholes may be found in some divisions, such as the payment of generous salaries to officials in the Veterans' Administration who are drawing compensation for "total disability." Under the impetus of the present immense deficit, Senator Robinson's proposed commission should be able to point out ways for trimming a substantial sum from the annual appropriations.

Reorganization of the executive agencies of the Government with a view to chopping off the dead branches is an especially difficult undertaking. A few years ago a presidential committee outlined an elaborate plan for the abolition of useless agencies and the consolidation of bureaus whose functions now overlap. But Congress ignored the excellent work of this committee because of the political pressure that was brought to bear upon members of both houses by constituents whose jobs would have been cut off.

If departmental reorganization is to be effected it must be done by Congress. Since the establishment of a balance between expenditures and revenue without laying an undue burden upon the people is the biggest undertaking that faces Congress at this session, it is a good time to adopt the Robinson resolution.

A TARIFF ON OIL.

Secretary Wilbur's report to the Senate commerce committee on the proposed oil tariff has led to a good deal of confusion as to the attitude of the administration on this issue. Mr. Wilbur's approval of the Shortridge bill was modified by so many conditions that he can hardly be said to favor an oil tariff under present circumstances. Before his approval may be applied to a duty on oil the interests of consumers must be safeguarded, conservation of oil and gas must be provided, unit operation of pools must be established, imports and domestic production must be correlated, and provision must be made to protect the export oil industry.

One fact that is often overlooked in the clamor for a tariff on oil is brought forward by Secretary Wilbur's statement. For several years the United States has been an oil-exporting nation. In 1930 20 per cent of all crude petroleum and refined products handled in this country went into the export market. The excess of exports over imports for that year was 95,263,000 barrels. Exports grew for ten years until 1931, when there was a slight falling off. On the contrary, imports amounted to 27 per cent of domestic production in 1921, and only 10 per cent in 1931. When only crude oil is taken into consideration, imports amount to but 6 per cent of domestic production.

Most of the American oil exports heretofore have been finished products. Small quantities of foreign oils are brought into the United States for refinement and sale on foreign markets. In these circumstances, how could a tariff on oil improve the situation of independent producers? When the price of cotton, America's chief export, falls below the cost of production no one attempts to correct the situation by levying a duty on cotton imports. Leaving the conservation element out of consideration, the oil producer is in about the same position as the cotton farmer.

The objective of the independent operators is to force American refineries to buy their oil instead of foreign oil. That would divert the foreign oil into the market which now absorbs American petroleum exports. Even without a tariff the tendency of South American oil companies to refine their own oil may be read in statistics of the industry. Crude imports into the United States have been sharply curtailed. The importation of refined products has substantially increased. On the other hand, the volume of crude exported from the United States last year increased, while there was a sharp reduction in the shipment of refined products abroad.

It must be apparent to any reasonable person that the United States would lose its export market for gasoline to the extent that Congress might prohibit the importation of crude oil. If the proposed tariff should raise prices in this country the entire export market would be cut off because the demand could be supplied at a lower cost by South America. Without an export market, the demand for domestic crude would be reduced by one-fifth, and the independent operators would be in a far worse position than they now are.

It is not improbable that if the independent oil interests should succeed in getting a tariff through Congress they would be forced to swing over to the other side of the fence and plead for restoration of the oil export business to create a demand for their petroleum. Perhaps Secretary Wilbur sees an element of conservation in the tariff argument that appeals to him.

SPEED THE SANITARIUM.

Another delay is encountered in fulfilling the urgent need that exists for the Children's Tuberculosis Sanitarium. It is now three years since the appropriation was authorized for this institution and now, with the plans completed for the first building, all bids for its erection have been rejected because they exceeded the fund available for it, and the plans will have to be revised.

The original bill was signed on March 1, 1929, authorizing an appropriation of $500,000 for the Children's Sanitarium. A year was occupied by a committee appointed by the District Commissioners to make a survey and recommend plans. This committee found that more money would be needed and Congress raised the authorized appropriation to $625,000. In July, 1930, the initial appropriation of $75,000 was made for the purchase of a site and preparation of plans. A year ago this month final contracts for construction were authorized. Last April architects were selected, and in October the plans were approved. Now the first bids have been rejected.

This is work that should be expedited in every way possible. Today 801 tuberculous children are on record in the District Health Department, 233 of this number being pulmonary cases and 568 juvenile cases. The welfare of these children demands the early completion of the sanitarium.

A scientist says it is man's nature to desire to run roughshod over all obstacles. That explains why the automobile is so popular.

AMERICA AND JAPAN

By Commander HOLLOWAY H. FROST, U. S. Navy.

I.

(Editor's Note: This is the first of a series of articles comparing the navies of the United States and Japan. In accordance with Naval Regulations the writer is alone responsible for all statements of fact and opinion in this series.)

An accurate knowledge of the actual fighting strengths of the navies of the United States and Japan is essential to any proper understanding of the international situation as it exists today. Unfortunately the published figures of naval tonnage have little significance. They must be supplemented by a number of facts concerning this tonnage. In turn, these facts must be interpreted and evaluated if a true picture is to be presented. Naturally, such a process will result in as many answers as there are solutions. All I hope to give is one reasoned and impartial solution. Any departure from a strictly impartial attitude would be highly disadvantageous both to the Navy and the country. Overconfidence and lack of confidence in our Navy are equally harmful. The actual facts are what we want.

Let us consider first battleships and battle cruisers, which are combined in the general class of capital ships. The figures show that we have fifteen vessels of 455,400 tons. Japan has ten of 298,400 tons. But behind these figures there is a most involved situation. We are considering now only the vessels available during 1932. The first thing we find is that three of our battleships have been completely pulled to pieces for modernization. According to the Naval Institute Proceedings two of these vessels will not again become available until September, 1933. The third will be delayed until February, 1934. We must, therefore, eliminate these three vessels. This reduces our tonnage to 364,500. Now three of the twelve ships which give this total were not permitted by Mr. Hughes, when Secretary of State, to have their guns modified so they could fire at extreme range. With this exception, our twelve ships are in excellent condition.

Included in the ten Japanese capital ships is the battle cruiser Hiyei. This is one of the vessels eliminated by the London treaty, the ratification of which was announced on January 1, 1931. The Hiyei may be retained as a training ship. If the Japanese elect to do so, her conversion into such a ship must be commenced on July 1 of this year. By international agreement this vessel "shall not be used for any combatant purpose." If the Japanese do not elect to designate the Hiyei as a training ship, she must be "rendered unfit for warlike service" by July 1 and completely scrapped one year later. Admittedly the status of this ship is not as definite as might be wished. But we must assume that the London treaty will be observed. Therefore, we must consider the Hiyei eliminated from the combatant forces of Japan.

This reduces the Japanese list of capital ships to nine vessels of 272,070 tons. Two battleships in this list are under modernization. It is believed that this work is about half completed. How soon these ships could be made ready is just a guess. It may be anywhere from one to six months. We have retained them on the list as available during 1932. The remaining seven capital ships have completed modernization or were completed so recently as not to require it.

Now we must endeavor to make an estimate of the relative effectiveness of the American and Japanese capital ships, ton for ton. Our ships average nearly one year newer than the Japanese. All our twelve ships have been modernized or are so new as not to require modernization, while two Japanese ships are only partly modernized and not immediately available. Three of the Japanese ships are battle cruisers. They are considerably weaker in armor and armament than our battleships and, for battle cruisers, have the comparatively low speed of about 26 knots. Added to this is the emphasis that we have always given to the battleship type in design, construction, repair and modernization. And finally we must consider our high development of long range gunnery equipment, our use of aircraft from battleships, and our excellent antiaircraft defensive measures. We conclude that, ton for ton, our capital ships are 15 per cent more effective than those of Japan. Deducting 15 per cent from the Japanese tonnage, we reach the following conclusion as regards relative fighting strength in capital ships: United States, 364,500; Japan, 231,260.

POST HASTE.

If any wrenches are thrown in the congressional machinery expediting credit relief measures today they will surely be of the monkey variety.

French financiers analyzing the proposed legislation modifying Federal Reserve regulations can find no inflation in it, so the best they can do is to fear "psychological dangers for American money." Fortunately Americans are not so superpsychic.

As the week's prize optimist Mr. Farley can almost visualize Al Smith as desiring to accumulate delegates for the purpose of turning them over to Gov. Roosevelt at the "opportune moment."

The fact that such a large amount of the money that has disappeared from circulation consists of $1,000 bills relieves a lot of us from suspicion as hoarders.

One great advantage of the sales tax is that it would be no experiment. The experience of many nations is available and it can readily be figured that it would provide the least variable form of Federal income in good times or bad.

For once the stock market was so taken by surprise with the Federal Reserve measure that it didn't have opportunity to discount the good news. A holiday only stimulated an appetite that it is to be hoped will not go sour over the week-end.

Mr. Blagden's kidnapers are only kidding or else they are the rankest amateurs, to demand a mere $1,000 ransom these days.

Congressional mileage allowances of three times the cost of travel is graft, according to Senator Borah. Capitol Hill should be a fertile field to secure conscience contributions to the Community Chest.

The fact that bank deposits in the United States amount to fifty billions and that there is less than five billions of money in circulation helps us to appreciate the important part that credit plays.

Senators who refer to Reconstruction Corporation loans to banks and railroads as "gifts" can not complain if their statements about the dole bill are considered no more accurate.

Seven Democratic candidates can each name six who should withdraw in the interest of party harmony.

A bill has been introduced to extend the term of members of the House to four years. That's all right, since it has become the conservative branch, and then reduce sentaors to two years.

AGE TALKS TO YOUTH.

Old age whispered: "Youth, beware!
Love will lead you into care.

"Love is duty, love is pain,

"Yes," said youth, "for that we pray.

To Make the Jungle Safe, You Must Disarm the Tiger.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

"ALL those people who go about saying that war is inevitable and giving us their views on the next war are either dangerous lunatics or criminals."

That paragraph was written by a successful English author who fought through the World War from beginning to end.

Now he preaches disarmament and argues with matchless cunning that war is a product of preparedness—that nations heavily armed live in dread of one another and think in terms of conflict, so that a single overt act may at any moment break the tension and release the pent-up furies of destruction.

It is true. It is so obviously and indisputably true that millions who hate war accept it as the whole of truth and so are trapped and doomed.

When all men of a community are armed and each one lives in fear of his neighbor, a word or a look is enough to invite sudden death. Every man is ready to draw and fire on the instant because the one who draws tardily dies. Murder becomes commonplace, and weapons alone are to blame.

Yet men must arm to protect themselves and their homes if a madman walks the streets, threatening death to all who oppose him, and there is no law or servant of law to suppress him.

Nations can disarm and live together without fear or anxiety if all will disarm in good faith and none will envy or covet or dream of conquest.

But as the least quarrelsome of men must be prepared to protect his home in a land without police protection, so the nations must arm to defend their rights and their properties so long as one among them, drunk with a sense of power, pants and lusts for conquest in violation of treaties, honor, justice and the dictates of common humanity.

There is no alternative except to surrender all properties, markets and rights in allen lands and look on in craven silence while the marauder rapes the world.

This Nation would gladly lead the world in disarmament. It has set a good example. It has made overtures. But one nation can do nothing without cooperation, and it is criminal folly to leave America unprotected like a fat ox among wolves.

No Time to Quit Philippines.

Boston Transscript.

Secretary of War Hurley's plain statement to the insular committee of the House, of the situation in the Philippines, as affecting the demand of certain elements for immediate independence, justifies the visit of this peculiarly clear-headed Cabinet member to the islands. His statement is a model of directness of expression as well as a proof of the thoroughness of the Secretary's observation of the situation. It throws light on every phase of the agitation, in the islands as well as in the United States, but Mr. Hurley shows himself capable of putting the thing in a nutshell in these words:

"The political chaos in the Orient today is such that in my opinion this is no time to deal with Philippine independence. Until the Filipino people shall have made greater progress toward economic independence, political independence would merely invite revolution and anarchy. Legislation to that end would serve the interests of neither the Filipino people nor the United States. * * * The responsibility voluntarily undertaken in the United States with respect to the Philippines has not yet been discharged. The final discharge of that responsibility can not be honorably escaped, even with the complete consent of the Filipino people."

Tammany's Dilemma.

New York Times.

The obvious Tammany game is for the time being to assume an air of great impartiality; to "play along" with the governor while he has possible favors to bestow upon them, and until they know what his final attitude will be toward their own wrongdoers exposed by Judge Seabury.

It appears, however, that this plan of fine neutrality, of splendid isolation in a sudden political crisis, is to be frustrated. Enthusiastic workers for Mr. Smith, whose zeal he, of course, is unable to restrain, declare that they are going to nominate Smith delegates in the primaries throughout every borough in Greater New York. They believe that they will be able to defeat the Tammany delegates in many districts, if it comes down to a rip-roaring fight for Smith as against a lukewarm and insincere campaign for Roosevelt. This may be too optimistic. But at all events, it portends an effort within the Democratic party in this city which will make it impossible for Tammany long to remain neutral, or to pretend to do so.

The assumption that South Dakota citizens will vote for Franklin D. Roosevelt, simply because his name is Roosevelt, is surely not complimentary reference to their intelligence. Franklin is an extremely remote kin of the famous Teddy, once popular in South Dakota, and it is an insult to the voters to say that they will be influenced by this distant relationship or the mere fact that the name is the same.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Japan Is Making War and, Therefore, Violating Three Treaties; Powers Must Call a Halt.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Japan is a party to the nine-power treaty, the Kellogg pact and the covenant of the League of Nations. Her warlike procedure in Manchuria, and now her vicious attack upon Shanghai are in both cases plain contravention of these formal pledges made by Japan. The violations are so flagrant and the excuses made by Japan are such palpable evasions that it is impossible to accept official explanations from Tokyo as made in good faith. Under the nine-power treaty Japan agreed "to respect the sovereignty, the independence, and the territorial and administrative integrity of China; to provide the fullest and most unembarrassed opportunity to China to develop and maintain for herself an effective and stable government."

By signing the Kellogg pact, Japan, in company with the other high contracting parties, agreed "that the settlement of all disputes or conflicts of whatever nature, or of whatever origin they may be, which may arise among them, shall never be sought except by pacific means."

As a member of the League of Nations Japan undertook "to respect and preserve as against external aggression the territorial integrity and existing political independence of all members of the league. In case of any such aggression or in case of any threat or danger of such aggression the council shall advise upon the means by which this obligtaion shall be fulfilled."

Article 16 of the league covenant provides that "should any member of the league resort to war in disregard of its covenants under articles 12, 13 or 15 it shall ipso facto be deemed to have committed an act of war against all other members of the league, which hereby undertake immediately to subject it to the severance of all trade or financial relations, the prohibition of all intercourse between their nationals and the nationals of the covenant-breaking state, and the prevention of all financial, commercial, or personal intercourse between the nationals of the covenant-breaking state and the nationals of any other state, whether a member of the league or not."

Japan's repeated protests that she is not waging a war are no longer true. The attack upon the Chinese at Shanghai is war and nothing but war.

The nations are about to be compelled to call a halt. They can not acquiesce in the violation of these treaties without becoming involved in war. The only way to preserve world peace is to make those treaties effective by holding Japan to account.

Footpath to Mount Vernon Should Be Provided—Notable Oversight in Building New Boulevard.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In the hope that the matter may some day be attended to, I beg leave to voice the regret of many who have been disappointed at the failure to provide footpaths along the memorial boulevard to Mount Vernon. There can be no question that there are thousands of peripatetic nature lovers who would be delighted to make use of Mount Vernon foot paths, and in no way could they more fittingly honor the memory of Washington. One reason why the requirements of pedestrians were not considered may be that the boulevard planners were not themselves fond of walking, or were too old, and therefore inadvertently failed to give due consideration to the wishes of habitual hikers and the needs of the younger generation. Or may be the footpaths were omitted by motor-minded traffic engineers on the ground that pedestrians constitute a highway nuisance like poultry or stray cattle and horses.

At all events, I trust that some day the side paths will be supplied, or, better still, a shaded Mount Vernon pathway safety separated from the boulevard.

Believes Democracy's Chances Are Dimmed by Al Smith's Candidacy.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The entrance of former Gov. Smith in the race for the Democratic nomination for the Presidency can not be otherwise than disconcerting to leaders of the Democratic party, as likely to blast whatever hope may have been entertained of a Democratic victory in 1932.

With Smith only tacitly contending for the nomination, the prospect of nominating Franklin D. Roosevelt has been considerably dimmed. With Roosevelt vanquished and Smith rejected, no other candidate the party might nominate would be likely to stand any chance of success against Herbert Hoover.

There is every reason to believe that the Republicans will go into the fall campaign with a determination to win.

Public Does Not Demand Radio Jazz; It's Thrust Upon the People.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The latest is not necessarily the best. The erroneous thought that the latest must be the best accounts for the insufferable amount of jazz being broadcast. Merchant concerns, or their advertising managers, evidently not gifted with musical tastes, issue instructions that their programs be made up of jazz. So it certainly is not, as some would have us believe, public demand that puts so much jazz on the air, but, rather, commercialism. Must we tolerate it?

The New England States bicentennial ball, to be held in the grand ballroom of the Willard Hotel on February 22, at 8:30 p. m., will not only be a brilliant affair in color, but will be attended by many notables of diplomatic, military and civil life. This affair, which is sponsored by the original thirteen State societies, promises to be one of the highest lights of the day's festivities.

A well-balanced patriotic entertainment featuring among other things some of the most noted artists will precede the dance. Many delegations participating in the exercises in Alexandria have expressed their intent of attending, while others have already made box reservations, among these will be groups from the Richmond Blues, the Virginia National Guard and the Society of Virginia.

The ballroom will be decorated to a brilliancy fitting the occasion. The committee on Washington affairs has left nothing undone in their attempt to make the decorations authentic and unique. Many of Washingon's direct lineage will be present which will, of course, make the occasion more significant.

As the ballroom is limited to 1,200 persons it is suggested that those wishing to attend should make their reservations early, as the remaining available tickets are moving very hastily. This may be done by calling Potomac 4614 or by calling at the Willard Hotel Ticket Bureau.

Miss Lillian M. Griggs, of Upper Montclair, N. J., is passing a few days at the Dodge and is accompanied by Miss Agnes M. Nolan, of Brooklyn, N. Y.

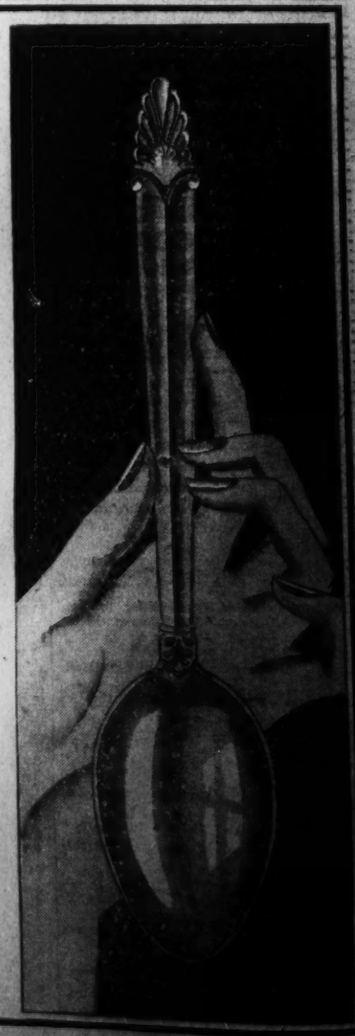
. . . the new reigning beauty of modern Sterling Silverware

International Sterling has created, in this new and distinguished design, a loveliness such as modern silvercraft seldom sees. Using classic motives, an original design has been created in the contemporary manner and with an unusual quality of beauty. The slight curve of the plain surfaces in the shaft is emphasized in the restrained shell motif which crowns each piece. This is reminiscent of the famous Empire period so in vogue now. Its loveliness is the type which endures — and its style lives well with dining-rooms in any of these important styles—Colonial, Georgian, Empire, Chippendale, Sheraton, Adam, Louis XIV and Louis XV.

SILVERWARE, FIRST FLOOR



DIAL FLASHES

By ROBERT D. HEINL

THE warfare in the Orient has raised the question as to whether or not the radio is as effective in time of war as the cable. A statement was credited to a cable company in New York that in war the cable was the only secret means of communication.

"This is not true," a radio official retorted. "The cable is no more secret than the radio. The impression that it is arises from the fact that there is confusion in the public mind between program broadcasting and radio telegraph point-to-point communication.

"When a program is broadcast, any one can listen to it, but when a message is sent by radio telegraph, it is done by means of high frequencies and high speed—some 200 words a minute. This makes it impossible to receive without the most expensive and complicated apparatus, and it is physically impossible to read such a message by ear. It is recorded on a tape by means of a syphon recorder similar to that used by the cable."

Another assertion of the cable people was that deciphering was too far advanced to send radio messages through the air at random.

"Radio messages are not sent through the air at random," the radio official replied. "They are sent on a directive circuit upon the principle of a beam of light. This makes them all the more secret because they go direct. Take the example of sending a radiogram from New York to Moscow. It goes direct. To try to pick out any particular radiogram you are interested in is like trying to find a needle in a haystack.

"A cablegram to Moscow has to be relayed by way of London, Paris or Berlin, where copies must be kept for accounting purposes for one year and may be inspected at any time by government officials.

"I also saw a statement that the only direct outlet for messages since a Japanese bomb damaged the radio station in Shanghai was the cable. This is not true because, according to the latest advices, a bomb did not damage the station at Shanghai and direct radio communication is, at this writing, being carried on between the United States and that city."

GEORGE W. HARRIS promises to give us some inside stories about national and international notables when Harris & Ewing go on the air tonight to celebrate their twenty-seventh anniversary. (WRC, 8 p. m.) Mr. Harris has probably photographed more celebrities than any man in the world.

His experience has been unique and his absence tonight will doubtless be filled with reminiscences of incidents which seldom are experienced in the lifetime of one person.

While Frederic William Wile was speaking from Geneva the ticking of his watch, which had probably been placed on the table beside the microphone, could be plainly heard in Washington.

Those seeking sites for television stations are said to be securing options for television rights from owners of tall and outstanding buildings in cities.

One of the most promising structures for this purpose is believed to be the Empire State Building, where the NBC is installing apparatus. The television range from the top of this structure is expected to be between 40 and 60 miles.

BUSINESS during the past year for Columbia has been better than previously reported.

"I notice it was stated recently that Columbia shows an increase of more than $2,000,000 for 1931 over 1930," writes John J. Karol, director of market research for Columbia. "According to our records, our increase for 1931 over 1930 was approximately $3,500,000. This, of course, refers only to time sold on the network and does not include talent cost.

"Incidentally, this is the largest gain reported for any single network."

Little Jack Little has been signed by Columbia to appear exclusively over that network. He will be heard in his own piano and song recitals every morning, except Sunday, at 9 o'clock. He will be heard here for the first time tomorrow morning, a local feature being scheduled for that hour this morning.

E. C. MILLS has been selected by the board of directors of the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers to succeed J. C. Rosenthal, deceased. Mr. Mills is expected to take office on March 1.

At present Mills is under contract to NBC as the head of the Radio Music, Inc. He will resign from that position.

A special program commemorating the thirty-fourth anniversary of the sinking of the battleship Maine will be presented under the auspices of the United Spanish War Veterans over WRC at 1:30 o'clock today. The speakers will include Dr. Orestes Ferrara, Cuban Ambassador to the United States.

ON account of the Marine Band participating in the Maine Memorial ceremony, there will be no "shut-in" concert broadcast today, nor a week from today, at which time the band will be taking part in the George Washington celebration.

The next "shut-in" concert will be broadcast Monday, February 29, at 3 o'clock. Arthur Godfrey, the announcer, has suggested that those desiring to do a kindly deed either convey a "shut-in" to the Marine Barracks, or invite those not fortunate enough to possess a radio set to their own homes to listen to the concert.

A MALE chorus of sixteen voices will inaugurate a new weekly program, "The Guardsmen" on Wednesday, WJZ network, 10.45 p. m. Keith McLeod will direct the chorus * * * Peggy Clark has moved her Press Personalities hour from 5:30 to 9 p. m. Mondays * * * Lawrence Tibbett will sing "Tramps at Sea," by Stothart; "Going Home," and "Largo Al Factotum" tonight (WRC, 8:30 p. m.) * * * Harry T. Burleigh, colored concert barytone, will be featured on the Musical Americana presentation (WMAL, 3:30 p. m. tomorrow afternoon) * * * Shaw Desmond, Irish author, novelist and newspaper correspondent, will describe his experiences, "Windjamming the Horn," (WMAL, 5:45 p. m., tomorrow afternoon) * * * Ursula Parrott, author of "Ex-Wife," and Peggy Hopkins Joyce, who has had four husbands, are scheduled for the same period Tuesday and Wednesday (WMAL, 8 p. m.).

Three Americans in Geneva representing organizations working for the success of the disarmament conference will address a radio audience in this country over N. B. Co. networks tonight at 6:30.

The speakers will be Michael Francis Doyle, of Philadelphia, chairman of the American committee coordinating activities in Geneva; Mrs. Frank Day Tuttle, of New York, director of the League of Nations Association, who will speak in behalf of women; and the Rev. Joseph F. Thorning, S. J., of the Catholic Association for International Peace, with headquarters in Washington, who will speak in behalf of churches.

Jane Engle INTERPRETS the MODE

Evening gown of course black tulle, with very low back decolletage which can be completely covered by a separate top for a less formal garment. (A Dah-ray Design.)

New York, Feb. 14.

WHO doesn't remember the panic of three seasons ago!

What panic? I mean the personal, private and behind-closed-doors panic * * * when one gazed and gazed upon one's evening coats, and after agonizing hours, finally decided that there was simply nothing to be done but make short jackets out of them.

Nice, 'spensive coats, too, that used to be considered long coats when skirts were all knee length!

Of course, some of us refused, absolutely, to ruin the line and mutilate the beautiful fabric by cutting our evening coats down to jacquettes, and had pajamas made to go with them, or skirts, making the coats into tunic coats, and had gorlicious negligees and tea gowns—which, maybe, we never even wore.

Others even sternly resisting all compromise, hung their evening coats away in drapes and lavender. And 'tis they who are lucky, because what was at one time a full-length evening coat, ending somewhere about the knees—is now one of the smart new three-quarter evening coats—still ending about at the knees!

Lanvin, Patou, Lelong, all of the "Haute" Coutures show these three-quarter evening wraps nowadays.

And it is undeniable that they do have a more elegant air than do the little short evening things that serve as wraps.

Another idea found in the three-quarter length evening wrap is this; a black or brown velvet wrap of this length, trimmed more or less lavishly with fur, serves equally as well for a very formal evening wrap as it serves for an afternoon jacket; or an informal evening wrap, worn over the increasingly popular cinema frocks.

And for the woman who has to economize just the least bit, an evening coat that actually can be worn for some daytime occasion is a real economy.

* * * *

Now I've designed something that I think you might like—really, I designed it for myself, you see, and it was so successful that I just up and sketched it for you! 'Tis a very formal, or very decollete rather, evening gown of coarse black tulle, made into sewn-down incrustations to just below the knees, where it flares sharply. The front is as you see it, and the back is sharply V to the belt. So-o-o-o, and then what? Why, then another top effect of the same tulle, this one with sharply flared sleeves that look like the wings of a black butterfly, and strass trimming which, from its heaviness, holds this top in place in the back. The black moire belt of the first dress is not worn with this second piece, as it has a matching strass belt—which is what holds it so well in place, you see. Thus my formal frock becomes sufficiently modest and charming to be an informal dinner gown, comprenez?

Au revoir.

HOW TO KEEP 'WELL

By DR. W. A. EVANS

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to hygiene and prevention of disease will be answered in this column. Personal replies will be made to inquiries, under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is inclosed. Dr. Evans will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual disease.

A MOTTLED TOOTH STORY.

DR. B. A. WILCOX tells the following story about the prevalence of mottled teeth in Minonk, Ill.:

"In 1893 the city dug a well 1,800 feet deep, striking a vein of water which at first rose almost to the surface of the ground, but which later receded, so that it was necessary to pump. The water had a peculiar, salty taste, but was generally liked when one became accustomed to it. For some years the people continued to use water from private wells, but gradually they switched to the public supply, finally boasting it was the finest supply in the world.

"In 1907 we first began noticing peculiar markings on the teeth of children. In 1928 a city wide survey showed that more than one-third of the children had mottled teeth.

"The mottling seems to be of different varieties, some with too much pigment and others with too little. In the back part of the mouth some of the teeth are rather pretty; they have different shades of gray mixed with spots of pure white. These white spots, to one not familiar with the condition, are liable to be diagnosed as chalky spots, or areas in which the enamel is beginning to break down. In other areas the mottlings are liable to be mistaken for something else.

"The pigment that discolors some of the teeth is always found on the outer surfaces of the teeth, and never on the tongue surface. In doing dental work on mottled teeth I find the pigment extends entirely through the enamel, but never into the dentine.

"These teeth do not decay. The proportion of decay in mottled teeth is somewhat less than the average. There is singular freedom from pyorrhea. In a recent checkup of some of the oldest persons with mottled teeth, some as old as 27 years, I found no indications of pyorrhea.

"The condition is limited to those who live in town and who drink this water. But we do not know why some who drink the water escape while others develop the abnormality. My sister has a daughter and I have a son of about the same age. They both drink this water. They live about the same way, and eat about the same diet. My niece has mottled teeth and my son has not.

"This water has a peculiar effect on some metals, such as aluminum. Aluminum cooking ware is guaranteed all over the world, except in our town."

REPLY.

Exactly your experience was duplicated in a mining village where the aluminum company mined its metal. The company made a sweeping examination and found the trouble was caused by drinking water from an unusually pure supply, so far as organic pollution was concerned. They found fluorine in the water to be the cause of the trouble. The remedy lies in getting a new water supply or in removing the excess fluorine from the old one.

THE HOMEMAKER

By NANCY CAREY

A Chicken Pie From Sunday's "Leftovers."

THIS being a Monday why not use what remains of our chicken for dinner tonight. It is already on hand, left over from yesterday's fricasee, and a chicken pie is easily made. As for the accompanying dishes, these will have to be left entirely in the hands of each homemaker, since the marketing will already have been done. Do let us hope that the vegetables are those which can be adapted to a vegetable salad to accompany the chicken pie, and if a few mushrooms are handy, do let's add them to the pie. One needs no more than a handful of mushrooms, a quarter pound is ample, but so distinctive is their flavor as to contribute materially to the finished product.

Nancy Carey.

And now our dinner menu for Tuesday.

TUESDAY'S DINNER.

Carrot Biscuit Soup
Ham Roll in Tomato Juice
Potato Croquettes
Buttered Spinach
Fresh Fruit Cup
Wellesley Loaf Cake
Coffee

Carrot Biscuit Soup.

6 carrots
3 potatoes
1 onion
4 slices bacon, cooked crisp and diced
2 tablespoonfuls bacon fat
2 biscuits or six soda crackers
Dash of paprika

Slice the carrots, potatoes and onion and cook in 2 quarts of water until tender. Add the bacon, bacon fat, salt and paprika. Five minutes before serving, break the biscuits and add to the soup. Either the biscuits or the crackers act as a thickening agent and give a distinct flavor to the soup.

Ham Roll in Tomato Juice.

1 slice ham, one-half inch thick.
1 cupful bread crumbs
3 teaspoonfuls chopped onion.
1 teaspoonful Worcestershire sauce
½ teaspoonful pepper
2 tablespoonfuls melted butter
Milk to moisten crumbs
1 cupful tomato juice

Make dressing of the crumbs, seasoning and milk. Cover the ham with the dressing and roll like a jelly roll. Fasten with toothpicks. Put in roasting pan and sear on all sides. Pour tomato juice over the ham and bake in a 400-degree oven until tender.

Wellesley Loaf Cake.

4 tablespoonfuls butter
½ cupful milk
1 cup sugar
1¼ cupful flour
2 egg yolks
2 egg whites
2 squares chocolate, melted
2½ teaspoonfuls baking powder
½ teaspoonful vanilla

Cream the butter and add, gradually, one-half cupful of the sugar. Beat the egg yolks and add the other one-half cupful of sugar, beating until light. Add to the creamed butter mixture and then beat in the flour sifted with the baking powder, alternately with the milk. Next mix the melted chocolate, vanilla and lastly the stiffly beaten egg whites.

Icing.

2 cupfuls sugar
⅓ cupful boiling water
2 egg whites
1½ squares chocolate, melted
½ teaspoonful vanilla

Heat the sugar with the boiling water and stir until dissolved. Then boil, without stirring, until sirup spins a thread. Pour the mixture slowly into the stiffly beaten egg whites and beat well. Return to double boiler and cook, stirring constantly, until it becomes granular around sides of pan. Add the vanilla and spread on cake. When the cake is frosted, pour on melted chocolate, a little at a time.

Answers to Readers.

Dear Miss Carey: I'm so out of proportion. Am 37 years old, 5 feet tall and weigh 140 pounds. Do everything to be done about a home and in the summer work in the garden. Manage then to lose about eight pounds, but soon gain it back in the fall. I can not afford to buy things to eat that the family can not share, so will appreciate your help. I eat very little pie or cake, but do like hot biscuits twice a day and candy real often.

Thanking you. MRS. A. E. D.

You should weigh but 122 pounds, Mrs. A. E. D., and since you are rather short on inches, I don't wonder that you feel rather "out of proportion." You are kept so busy about your house that I have rather a definite feeling it is your eating habits which are largely to blame. If you were to exercise more you would lose weight, no doubt, just as you do in the summer working in your garden, but I realize how difficult it is, impossible almost, to start walking a mile, climbing hills, &c., at the end of a hard day's work. So, lacking this exercise, it will be necessary to restrict your diet in order to reduce your weight. First of all, I should like you to send for our folder of reducing suggestions. Then, I should like you to make a study of caloric values and plan your menus according to those suggested in the folder. You will find that no special foods are required. You may eat the same things the rest of the family do, but with emphasis on fruits and vegetables, lean meats and skimmed milk.

When you have learned about calories, remember to watch them carefully for a while. As you become more accustomed to various values, you will know without previous calculation whether or not you are keeping within your allowance, and eventually you will scarcely ever have to think of them. I'm afraid the fondness for hot biscuits and candy will have to be foregone for a while. Such things make it almost impossible to keep within any set allowance, and, therefore, to reduce succecsfully. Let us hear from you soon, and best of luck.

Culbertson on Contract

World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyst

THE MASTER TOUCH.

MR. WALDEMAR VON ZEDTwitz, who before he became an American citizen was entitled to the distinction of being addressed as "Baron," is a great Contract player. He is among the four or five best players in the entire world. Hence I was extremely fortunate to get him to act as my partner in one session, just before he left for a cruise in tropical waters, in my match with Mr. Sidney S. Lenz.

The last hand of the last rubber he played gave to him an opportunity for brilliant play in the making of a Slam which we bid upon the hand below.

The Bidding.

Pass	Pass

Mr. Jacoby made a very brilliant Opening, the Ten of hearts. In the bidding I had made a Forcing Takeout in hearts and my partner had raised that bid to game, and Mr. Jacoby reasoned that Mr. Lenz could not hold more than a singleton in the heart suit and possibly was void of it. There was, therefore, everything to gain and nothing to lose by this selection of an Opening lead. When the Dummy went down, it was apparent to Mr. von Zedtwitz that his hope of making the hand depended on an end play. He could not take two rounds of spades and count on ruffing the third spade, because to do so would permit a second lead of hearts and thus the inevitable defeat of the contract. Mr. von Zedtwitz then won the first trick with the King of hearts in his own hand, led the singleton King of clubs, drew the adverse trumps and discarded a spade on the Ace of clubs. He ruffed two losing clubs and on the eleventh trick was left in his own hand with the Queen and four of spades and the four of hearts. In the Dummy were the deuce of hearts and the Ace and seven of spades. Mr. von Zedtwitz led the four of hearts and forced Mr. Jacoby into the lead. Mr. Jacoby, who held at that time the King and eight of spades and nine of hearts, was compelled to take the trick and lead a spade, which the Baron permitted to run to his Queen and won the last trick with the Ace of spades, thus making all the tricks, except the eleventh, for a vulnerable Small Slam.

TODAY'S POINTER.

Unless you are able to play a doubtful Slam in a masterful manner, you are wiser not to bid it. Some Slam contracts require a master touch to make them.

Indoor—Outdoor Gardens

By JANE LESLIE KIFT

FEBRUARY GARDEN NOTES.

MANY trees and some shrubs should be pruned before the buds begin to swell, but this does not apply to such shrubs as lilacs, forsythias, wiegelias, deutzias, Japanese quince, tree peonies, most spireas and the viburnums. These varieties bloom on wood made the previous season, and must, therefore, be permitted to bloom before being pruned.

If you have some Daphne cneorum growing in your garden, do not attempt to uncover it until early April. If you uncover it at this time the evergreen tips of the young branches, which bear the pink flowers, are sure to be burned by the sun.

This is the month to start hardy annuals, biennials and perennials. The seed can be sown in a hotbed, or you can start them in flats in the house. Seeds of asters which you want for early flowers should be started by the fifteenth of the month.

Do not neglect to prune your grapevines before they start into growth, because they bleed freely.

Keep window boxes which are filled with evergreens well watered during the winter months. Even if ice forms around the plants no harm will be done to them, and a constant supply of moisture will tend to make healthy plants of them.

February and March are the months when you must protect your rhododendrons by some sort of covering, such as evergreen boughs, to protect them from too strong sunlight.

When preparing soil for seed flats use plenty of compost to make it light. The following are the proper proportions: One-third sand, one-third garden soil and one-third humus. No active fertilizer must be used.

Oxalis and begonia bulbs should be potted in February or March. Put a dash of sand under each bulb, plunge the pots in a box of wet sand up to their rims and put away in a cool part of the cellar. When you detect signs of growth bring the plants into the light, but do not supply them with too much water until they become well rooted.

Wives of Tomorrow

By FRANCES M'DONALD

Who Will Donate an Empty House?

The letter published herewith speaks for itself. If there is anyone who knows of a vacant building or store that might save from desperation some fellow-being during these days that to many of us mean curtailing of luxuries but to thousands mean the end of the struggle, we would welcome any effort they might make in procuring it for this woman who, accustomed to observing human misery, finds conditions today beyond compare.

Do you own some empty house in a poor neighborhood? Thousands do. Why not give it at least for the winter? Not to house professional tramps. But for those who for the first time are homeless, penniless, defenseless. Last winter we volunteered to help at the Salvation Army bread line for women in New York City. It was a revelation to our cynical soul. For the women were not tramps. Some wept. But more unbelievable—some smiled, tremulously, but nevertheless smiled—and tried to console the weepers. Soul-tearing spectacle in a land Christian and civilized. We were not much use as a helper. Life seemed to ebb out of our body at the sight of women shivering, hungry, ill. But there are stancher spirits who minister while we sleep on soft pillows. This woman whose letter follows is one. Can you help her to help tortured humanity during this national disgrace? If you own an unoccupied building or house will you give it—or will you "pass by on the other side?" God's in his heaven, all's right with the world—for some of us:

Dear Frances McDonald:

For the past four months I have been looking for a building suitable to house and feed unemployed women. Settlement House where a person who is temporarily in distress can find immediate relief without being sent from place to place, finally getting nothing. In the inclosed news article appearing December 15, you will see I was given the use of part of one building, but after thinking the matter over the owner decided not to allow me to use the rooms. He said he had been criticized, and his present tenants objected. If I could obtain the use of some unoccupied house for this type of work free, I could do much good at this time.

I have 42 letters from people offering help in the way of food, clothes, money, cots and blankets, but no building. I personally know of three girls here who lost their positions and were forced so go wrong for a shelter. The Women's Emergency Home Salvation Army is the only place a woman can go here, other than the House of Detention, and this emergency place is temporary only.

I talk to women every day on the street, around the missions and their strength is failing. Soup and dry bread for a hungry person and for weeks no bed, sitting in hallways.

The bum we have always had and will continue to have, but I talk to men and women every day who want work and who are not bums. Many have held good positions. These are the ones I am pleading for now. And if the building is given me I will work day and night and see that no young girl or boy is turned away.

Without money I have helped many people by appealing to those in a position to do so, to keep them. I have had railroad stations release baggage from storage charges for people who would be destitute if it were held. I got baskets from others at police precincts and shoes for men who had none. I am determined to start a place here if I have to begin with a small room and serve meals only.

I am a graduate nurse and can refer you to doctors as to my character.

Will you write an article for me that will help me? I will be grateful. Thanking you,

I am yours truly,

MRS. MARY J. HAYDEN.

Tribute of Women Paid Washington

His Plea to Obey Law Is Stressed in Ceremony at Monument.

Representative William Washington Larson, of Georgia, read an extract enjoining obedience to the Constitution, from President Washington's Farewell Address, as a part of a ceremony at the base of the Washington Monument held Saturday under the auspices of the National Women's Democratic Law Enforcement League, and designed to direct national attention on the first President's advice on the eve of the bicentennial celebration.

A miniature signboard was displayed with the following quotation from the farewell address: "The Constitution which at any time exists, until changed by the explicit and authentic act of the whole people, is sacredly obligatory upon all." Beneath this quotation was the inscription: "Uphold the Eighteenth Amendment." The organization plans to erect a permanent duplicate of this signboard somewhere in Washington.

Referring to the signboard Representative Larsen said: "We are now on the eve of the bicentennial celebration of that great character, George Washington, who gave utterance to that beautiful sentiment and wholesome truth inscribed upon the tablet. His memory will never die; long may that Constitution which he helped to create and always loved survive, and may it ever be the fervent desire of the American citizen to obey."

What Today Means to You

"AQUARIUS"

If February 15th is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 8:40 a. m. to 10 a. m., from 1 p. m. to 2:30 p. m. and from 6:40 p. m. to 8 p. m. The danger periods are from 11:10 a. m. to 12:30 p. m. and from 9:15 p. m. to 10:30 p. m.

Astrological indications February 15th do not picture Fate as playing a game of give and take on this date, and you will find yourself up against more than one "cul-de-sac" mountains of prejudice and custom. "To him that hath, it shall be given" and successes will crown successes, but evade the unfortunate and unambitious.

The child born on this February 15th will have the peculiar sensitiveness of an artist, and environment will play an important part in the moulding of its character and future. Although it will be impulsive and fiery, it will be nevertheless guided by the intellect, even in apparent rashness.

Born February 15th, you are not born to greatness, but you were born with the capacity to live in your own small world, in such a way that you generate an atmosphere of love and friendliness that makes you needed. People miss you in your absence, for you are a serviceable and an agreeable companion. You are a king or queen in your own circle and the sort of a person to whom others come when they are in trouble, knowing they will receive both wisdom and understanding from you. You are not big because of your achievements, but you are big in the way you run the race. In your business, on the sports field, at your home, or in any other phase of your life, you are admired for your gameness.

You are optimistic, you can look beyond the thunder clouds to the sunshine which will soon be streaming through. You are not narrow when you look out at life—you love the good things, love the interludes of careless joys, and love all the pleasant things our bodies were meant to appreciate. You are a "good liver," but a clean one. There is nothing morbid in your nature, and you are not subject to the "blues." You never count the cost of anything which you really want. Great vitality and a good resistance to disease is shown.

Printing Cost Cut Vital, Book Publishers Assert

New York, Feb. 14 (A.P.).—Declaring that the present level of wages for workers in local book and job printing plants "is not only uneconomic but impossible of maintenance," the National Association of Book Publishers announced today it has joined the group of employers demanding a 20 per cent wage cut.

The association assured the New York Employing Printers Association of its support in the event employers decide to "have open shop" conditions. To supply books to the public at lower prices, the publishers said, they had had to effect drastic economies in all departments, but printing costs had not come down proportionally.

HIGH CALIBER MOVIES HELD MORE POPULAR

Will Hays Avers Standards of Pictures Going Up; Gives 1932 Outlook.

Special to The Washington Post.

Hollywood, Calif., Feb. 14.—Class entertainment, as well as mass entertainment, will feature the production program of the motion picture industry in 1932, according to Will H. Hays, who arrived here today to attend the annual meeting of the Producers Association.

"Instead of leveling entertainment to a fixed common denominator," he declared, "the motion picture industry is stepping up its entertainment standards to meet the needs of every element of the potential motion picture audience. Such pictures are turning millions of casual moviegoers and nonattenders into regular patrons.

"Many of the pictures now in the theaters or coming from the studios are attracting entirely new audiences. Pictures of a dramatic and intellectual caliber that would not have been successful popular entertainment a few years ago are now being received with enthusiastic approval by the regular motion picture patrons as well as tapping new strata of attendance for motion picture theaters.

"Experimentation in mechanics, lighting, photography, sound effects has been succeeded by equal boldness of courageous enterprise in the field of story experimentation.

"The screen has made most impressive artistic progress. The quality of our world's entertainment is at a higher level now than at any time in history—and that level constantly rises. The motion picture industry will meet its purely industrial problems with no less courage.

"The expression of public taste reflected to the motion picture industry through the widespread organization of group leadership has helped greatly. Such leadership is aiding in shaping community taste toward higher levels of entertainment. It would be conservative to say that a volunteer army of cooperative committees is working with industry toward the same objective of developing the widest possible acceptance of the highest possible entertainment standards.

"We have still far to travel to reach the ultimate goal but all must applaud the definite milestones of progress evident in the great pictures of 1932."

New Advertising Firm Announces Its Program

The organization of a new advertising company, to be known as the United States Advertising Corporation, with offices in New York, Chicago, Toledo, Milwaukee, Indianapolis, and with associate offices in important market centers of the world, has been announced.

The United States Advertising Corporation is the outgrowth of a desire on the part of the principals to bring together, into one highly organized Nation-wide unit, a number of skilled and successful advertising agency executives whose reputations for sound judgment, skilful merchandising and advertising craftsmanship have been definitely established.

ABOUT THE SHOWSHOPS

With NELSON B. BELL

IT no doubt would have been the part of a diligent dramatic editor to have scrambled out of the clutches of the ostermoor yesterday in time to scale the front of the National Theater, jimmie one of Mr. Cochran's office windows and thus gain secret and surreptitious entrance to the rehearsal halls of Mr. Ziegfeld's "Hot Cha!" while preparations for the premiere of the new musical were at the boiling point last night.

As a matter of fact that was the dramatic editor's original intention, but the Sunday and Rotogravure editors of The Post, having lost a tremendous amount of sleep during the past week out-argued him—and being two-to one, why not?—at the crucial moment. It was indeed a tempestuous session that the three of us had when I first awoke, for no reason at all, at high noon yesterday. But, as I say, the Sunday and Rotogravure editors, being in the majortiy, were too much for the dramatic editor, so I rolled over and continued my siesta until 3 o'clock in the afternoon, a round 12 hours. By that time, it was so late. . . . .

However, having received no official word to the contrary, I take it that "Hot Cha!" is in the pink and rarin' to go and will be duly revealed to an expectant and palpitant public tonight as announced, without one of those inconvenient postponements such as overtook "Show Boat," upon the occasion of its baptism in the same temple of the spoken and the lyric drama some seasons back.

And I take it, too, that as the finishing touches are being put on the latest vehicle for the brilliant talents of Mr. Lahr, Mr. Buddy Rogers, Senor Tito Coral, Miss Marjorie White, Miss June Knight and the many others concerned in the newest venture of the "old master," that the Messrs. Ziegfeld, Brown, Henderson, Connolly, et al., would be just as well satisfied not to have a lot of curious outsiders messing around and getting in everybody's way.

At any rate, that is a swell sop for a lazy reporter's conscience!

Speaking of the anxiety, taut nerves and dizzying ride on the merry-go-round that attend all theatrical openings and the last few hours of preparation therefor, as we were at least by implication, it seems that Florenz Ziegfeld himself is the only one who doesn't go completely off his nut when his own productions are in process of formation.

It is recalled that when "Show Boat" was being readied at the National and it finally became apparent that the opening would have to be deferred from Monday until Tuesday night, everybody was mildly coo-coo—except Flo Ziegfeld. For a moment it began to look as if he, too, had succumbed to the nervous strain.

Dashing up to Steve Cochran on Monday afternoon, when chaos reigned undisputed over the manager's office, Mr. Ziegfeld gave every indication of being about to blow up from uncompensated internal emotional stress. But what really was troubling him and what he said was:

"Say, Steve, do you know any place where you can get me a dozen quail by tomorrow night?"

Can ya imagine!

And if by any chance you are under the impression that Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer is apportioning its stars at the rate of one to a picture, please contemplate the cast that will be seen in the screen version of Vicki Baum's "Grand Hotel"—Greta Garbo, Lionel Barrymore, John Barrymore, Lewis Stone, Joan Crawford and Wallace Beery, supported by a group of artists only a little less notable!

Those who attended the last performance at Loew's Palace last evening were treated to a little extra comedy when Henry Mullins walked on to do a bit or two with the Joe Cook act.

Henry Mullins is an Atlanta boy, one of a family of twelve children, who came to the notice of Carter Barron, managing director of the Loew interests in Washington, when he (Henry) was walking the streets of the Georgia metropolis as a sandwich man, advertising lunchrooms and the like. Mr. Barron put the youth, then only in his early teens, in a doorman's uniform and, when occasion offered, tossed him into acts playing either the Fox or Capitol theaters in Atlanta for comedy effect.

Henry is not in himself comical. I know because he has just spent a half hour in my office and I have had some opportunity to gauge his capabilities, but he is a great subject to build comedy around. Why? Well, I'll tell you.

Henry Mullins, at the age of 16, is 7 feet 8 inches tall and weighs 280 pounds. That is 13 inches taller and 10 pounds heavier than Carnera, the giant Italian heavyweight. Doctors have told him that in the natural order of things he will continue to grow for four or five years and his height during that time will probably increase some 8 inches or so.

Mentally alert and a young man of excellent address, Henry has just completed a 30-week vaudeville tour on RKO time with an act known as Lewis & Adams. He is on his way to New York to continue his stage career. Mr. Barron, by the way, is his legal guardian and business adviser.

NEWMAN TRAVEL TALK

"LONDON LIFE." Fourth in a series of five Sunday afternoon travel lectures by E. M. Newman, illustrated with colored slides and motion pictures. Reviewed by William L. Wright. At the National Theater.

Continuing his current Sunday afternoon series of Traveltalks entitled "Seeing Europe—Impressions of 1931," E. M. Newman, noted world traveler, yesterday presented "London Life," as viewed by him last summer.

Beginning at Trafalgar Square, familiarly known as the Hub of London, we visited all parts of the city in turn—the East End, the West End, the Park Lane section, Regent street and the shopping district, Hyde Park and many others. En route to the many places of interest, some well known and others that the average visitor seldom sees, we caught many intimate glimpses of the colorful life of the London residents. The Costers, with their funny donkey carts and suits of buttons; Petticoat Lane on a Sunday morning with the sales in progress; the soap box orators in Hyde Park, and the Sunday morning church parade proving particularly interesting.

No visit to London would be complete without the famous tower and bridge, Westminster Abbey, Houses of Parliament, Buckingham Palace and other familiar landmarks that have been a part of the world's metropolis for many centuries. New pictures of these oft-photographed scenes interspersed with many well-chosen motion pictures made this traveltalk extremely interesting and instructive.

NATIONAL SYMPHONY AND VIOLINIST SCORE

Yelli d'Aranyi Wins Capital Audience as Soloist; Orchestra Pleases.

Yelli d'Aranyi, Hungarian woman violinist, was the soloist with the National Symphony Orchestra at its popular concert in Constitution Hall yesterday afternoon. Mlle d'Aranyi, the grandniece of Joseph Joachim, the noted virtuoso, inherited her musical talent and lives fully up to the traditions of her family in this regard.

She came to Washington with an enviable European reputation preceding her and yesterday's audience was quite won by her playing. Her number was the entire Mendelssohn Concerto in E minor of violin and orchestra, the test of any musician. Of the three movement sof the concerto the last one, "Allegro Vivace," was the one most appreciated for its beauty. In felicity of phrasing, technical skill and golden grace of tone the violinist excelled and was rewarded at the close of the concerto by having six curtain calls.

XVI involving economic and military

Hans Kindler and his musical men evoked the special values in Weber-Weingartner's "Invitation to the Dance," which was played for the first time in Washington yesterday. In this number the flutes, horns and harp were most effective with Alfred Manning, the harpist, scoring highly in this number, as well as in Handel's ever familiar but never hackneyed Largo, which followed it.

The Third Movement "Poco Allegretto," from Brahms' Third Symphony, did not meet with as successful treatment by the orchestra as the remainder of the program. A few more rehearsals on this composition might prove helpful.

Ravel's delightful Bolero, with its recurring counterpoint, made an excellent climax to the program, the measured beat of its 20-minute crescendo, from flute and drum to full orchestra, making an unique musical tour de force. E. E. P.

FAMOUS SEER
THE MAN WHO KNOWS
This strange man sees the way and tells it all. Just what your life has been, just what it will be. Tells you when and whom you will marry, whether husband, wife or sweetheart is true or false. Tells as to changes, travels, lost or absent friends, divorce, wills, deeds; whether it is best to buy or sell. He tells the good and the bad. A visit will convince you of his wonderful power. Something tells you this is the man. You feel the impulse. Do not delay.

HEADACHES, NERVOUS
Ridgely, W. Va.—"I became in a run-down condition, had pains in my back and side, had dizzy spells and suffered with headaches and was nervous," said Mrs. E. E. Bennear of 2 Potomac Road. I took the 'Prescription' for about three months and my health was restored. It certainly is a fine tonic!"

U. S. TEAMS LEAD AS BOBSLEDDERS MEET NEW DELAY

This MORNING with SHIRLEY L. POVICH

AROUND THE CIRCUIT.

OPPORTUNITY has veritably battered down the door of Lee A. Mangum, who will be seen this season in the uniform of the Boston Braves.

Mangum, a pitcher, will be receiving his seventh trial in the major leagues. He has had two tests with Pittsburgh, two with the White Sox, one with Washington and one with the Giants. In his time he has been the most promising of all pitchers, but no big league club has yet been able to collect.

The Cardinals are going to take the blanket off Pepper Martin and let him run next season, according to Sam Breadon. When they give him his head they ought to arm the catchers with machine guns to make it an even battle.

Mickey Cochrane beat Jimmy Dykes on the golf links, lost to Dykes on the pool table, and then carried the feud to the traps and shot it out with the third baseman to gain the decision. Then he made his victory secure by showing up as a saxophonist in a Pinehurst band while Dykes was forced to sit out.

Waite Hoyt says he has taken off 20 pounds and will join the Athletics at Fort Myers in an effort to win back a job, but his arguments won't carry much weight with Connie Mack unless Waite weighs his chances seriously.

Judge Landis has stepped in with his disapproval of the Boley deal between the Athletics and the Indians on the grounds that the trade, which carries a condition that Boley may be returned to the A's if found unsatisfactory, is little more than an option deal between two clubs in the same league. On the same premise, players may be loaned to each other by the clubs indiscriminately and collusion would be made easy if two or three contending clubs sought to keep a third club from the pennant.

The Nats will be able to throw in a pedagogic battery against the opposition next season if young Howard Maple, the catcher from Oregon, makes good. Monte Weaver is the other schoolmaster on the squad, having taught mathematics at a Virginia college. Maple teaches science at an Oregon institution.

Oscar Melillo, the Browns' flashy second baseman, is well fortified for next season. "I just got my All-American diploma from Babe Ruth, who picked me on his all-star team, and I'm eager to start the new race," says Melillo. Grove, Earnshaw, Gomez, Crowder and the rest of the mound stars may not take heed of Melillo's diploma, notwithstanding.

Mournful will sound a funeral note in the uniforms of at least three major league clubs next season. The Pirates will have a strip of black on their arms in memory of the death of President Barney Dreyfus. The Cubs will honor the memory of William Wrigley in the same manner and the White Sox will wear the black band in respect of Charles A. Comiskey.

The Cleveland Indians who are having contractual troubles with First Baseman Eddie Morgan presented Morgan with a fine argument last week when the Toledo Club announced the purchase of First Baseman Bill Sweeney from the Red Sox. Inasmuch as Toledo is the property of Cleveland, Morgan's presence with the Indians does not figure to be as great a necessity as heretofore.

Manager Joe McCarthy wails that none of the other American League clubs care to do business with the Yankees. "The only ones who seem even mildly interested in talking trade with me offered me pitchers who couldn't make the grade with Newark," McCarthy says. "Griffith wanted Lazzeri last summer but he couldn't meet my terms."

Bucky Harris is still on the trail of Joe Judge but the crux of the situation is Owner Navin's procrastination in accepting the terms of Clark Griffith which Harris has already deemed fair. Navin is pondering Griffith's demand for a catcher.

Should Judge go to Detroit he will face a battle with Dale Alexander for the first base job, but Judge held the Washington job safe against such men as Georgie Sisler, Art Shires, Frank Brower and a host of others and there is none so rash as to say he is not a better first baseman than Joe Kuhel. Against Alexander, it should be no contest.

The Tigers will present a rival for Ben Chapman's base stealing honors if Outfielder Joyner White from the Texas League makes a regular position. White stole 52 bases with Beaumont last year out of 68 attempts for an average of .765 which in the base stealing realm is magna cum laude.

Levinsky and Dempsey in Feature

Comeback Trail Will Bring Jack to Chicago Wednesday.

Rosenbloom, Godwin in Title Bout, One of Week's High Spots.

NEW YORK, Feb. 14 (A.P.).—From the standpoint of general interest, the big national boxing schedule this week resolves itself into a "big four" with Jack Dempsey, Steve Hamas, Tony Canzoneri and Maxie Rosenbloom the component parts.

Dempsey's exhibition tour brings him into Chicago at the stadium Thursday night when he will clash with King Levinsky, slugging Chicago heavyweight, in a four-round match. On the same card, Billy Jones, Philadelphia Negro, will meet George Nichols, of Buffalo, in one of the semifinals of the National Boxing Association's light-heavyweight tournament.

Rosenbloom, still regarded as the light-heavyweight champion in most quarters, tackles Bob Godwin, of Atlanta, in a ten-round match, billed as for the title, at Daytona Beach, Fla., Wednesday night.

Canzoneri, lightweight champion of the world, faces Lew Massey, of Philadelphia, in a ten-round nontitle bout at Philadelphia, tomorrow night.

Hamas Tackles Emanuel.

Hamas, fresh from a sensational knockout victory over Tommy Loughran here, will tackle Armand Emanuel, of San Francisco, in a ten-round heavyweight duel at Los Angeles Tuesday night.

Madison Square Garden's card here Friday night is topped by a ten-round struggle between Young Terry, Trenton, N. J., middleweight, and Charley (Chick) Devlin, Vancouver.

Fights on the national schedule include:

MONDAY—At Philadelphia, Tony Canzoneri, New York, vs. Lew Massey, Philadelphia, lightweights, 10 rounds (nontitle); at New York (St. Nicholas Arena), Bob Olin, New York, vs. Arthur Huttick, New York, light-heavyweights, 10; at Joplin, Mo., Lou Terry, St. Louis, vs. Buster Brown, St. Joseph, Mo., lightweights, 15, and Howard Scott, St. Louis, vs. Neil Grubbs, Fort Worth, Tex., junior lightweights, 6; at Louisville, Hughie G. Evansville, Ind., vs. Billy Thomas, Louisville, middleweights, 10, and Billy Wotanzi, New York, vs. Jackie Brown, Louisville, lightweights, 6; at Boston, Baby Jack Renault, Cambridge, Mass., vs. Pancho Villa, New Bedford, and Bobby Mays, New Bedford, vs. Nap Vproulx, Taunton, Mass., each 10; at Flint, Mich., Jack Dempsey, exhibition, two rounds each against Pat McLaughlin, Racine, Wis., and George Kohler, Chicago.

TUESDAY—At Los Angeles, Steve Hamas, Passaic, N. J., vs. Armand Emanuel, San Francisco, heavyweights, 10; at Portland, Oreg., Don Fraser, Tacoma, vs. Sammy Santos, Manila, welterweights, 10; at Indianapolis, Lou Scozza, Buffalo, vs. Larry Johnson, Chicago, Negro, light-heavyweights, 10; at Minneapolis, Gary Leach, Chicago, vs. M. Jim Corbett, Improved, To Leave Hospital Soon

New York, Feb. 14 (A.P.).—James J. Corbett's condition was so far improved today that his personal physician, Dr. George W. Fish, told him he could leave the Edward S. Harkness Pavilion of the Medical Center whenever he chose. The former heavyweight champion, who has been suffering from a heavy cold, decided to remain in the hospital for a few more days as a precautionary measure.

GENE SARAZEN.

$5,000 OPEN IS ANNEXED BY SARAZEN

Finishes With 69 to Beat Out Cooper by One Stroke.

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 14 (A.P.).—Gene Sarazen stuck close to par on the final 36 holes of the Metairie Golf Club's $5,000 open today, and claimed first money of $1,000 with a 72-hole total of 290.

Harry Cooper, Chicago, who finished second with 291, came to the final green needing a four to tie, but overshot his approach and failed to sink a chip from a back bunker by 18 inches. He collected $750.

Denny Shute, Cleveland, who played in the upper 70s yesterday and the day before, came back in today's morning round to climb up among the leaders with a 67, five under par, his best round of the tournament, which tied the course record. His afternoon's 74 gave him a 292 for third place and $600.

Hagen Finds Charmed Putter.

Walter Hagen, Detroit, also found a charmed putter to break through par in the final 18 with a 69 after three unspectacular rounds, and finished with 297, along with Johnny Golden, Noroton, Conn. They divided fourth and fifth money, drawing $450 each.

Sarazen was in the money from the start, when he carded a 69, better than the three other rounds of 76—73—72 for the low total.

Special to The Washington Post.

Baltimore, Md., Feb. 14.—The Washington racketers tacked up a 5-to-3 verdict over the Dumbarton Club netmen in a winter tennis league this afternoon at the Fifth Regiment Armory courts. Shore and Yeomans smashed their way through to victory in the No. 1 doubles to regain the edge for the Washington team, and then Buchanan and Quinn earned another point by virtue of a default by Commander C. C. Gill and Dick Mason. The other doubles match was not played because of lack of time before closing time at the armory.

Week Remains for Entries In A. A. U. Court Tourney

INDEPENDENT and scholastic basket ball teams, which will compete in the monster District A. A. U. championship tournament sponsored annually by The Post, have one week in which to complete their entrance. Entries for the competition, the grand climax of one of the Capital's greatest court seasons, will close at midnight on February 23, allowing A. A. U. officials a week before title play starts March 1, in which to make drawings, weigh the lighter-class players and check up on eligibility.

Teams in the 115 and 100 pound boys classes and the two girls classes have until that night for both registration of players and team entry, while the men's unlimited, 145 and 130 pound class teams, which have previously registered their players, must submit their team entries.

With practically every team of consequence in the District either entered or contemplating the move, A. A. U. officials are expecting the fields in the various classes to break the tournament record set last year.

Tech High gymnasium will again be the scene of the tournament. Teams in every class will be afforded ideal playing condition with the best referees obtainable in this section in charge of the games.

Novotney Golf Victor In Coral Gables Final

Coral Gables, Fla., Feb. 14 (A.P.).—Gus Novotney, of LaGrange, Ill., today won the St. Valentine's invitation golf tournament here by defeating Lee Chase, sr., defending champion, of Buffalo, N. Y., 3 and 2.

EIGHTH FOR RESERVES.

The Naval Reserves chalked up their eighth straight victory of the season when they defeated the Swann's Service quintet by a score of 29-23 in a well played game last night. The Reserves' superior teamwork clinched the decision.

Old Line Five Seeks 13th Straight

Maryland U. Host to Generals Tonight in Coliseum.

Parrack, G. W., Tops Scorers; Berger Makes Gain.

MARYLAND UNIVERSITY'S fast-traveling basketers will test the jinxing qualities of Old Number 13 tonight when they attempt to stretch their 12-game winning streak at the expense of Washington and Lee in a contest starting at 8 o'clock in the spacious Ritchie Coliseum. This is one of the outstanding features of a program of 19 games scheduled this week for Capital college quintets.

Strangely enough, in trying to score their thirteenth successive victory, the Marylanders meet the same foes whom they subdued to score their first triumph of the season. The Generals yielded to the Old Liners, 42-38, in a game that required two extra periods at Lexington, Va., exactly one month ago. Twice prior to that date Maryland had been beaten and those losses—to Wisconsin and Loyola of Baltimore—stand today as the only blemishes on one of the best basket ball records in College Park history.

Generals Present Giant Center.

Washington and Lee will present the tallest collegiate center in Atlantic Coast territory; namely Victor Griewank, who stands 6 feet 9 inches and who is surprisingly active considering his giant stature. Griewank will be opposed in the tap-off circle by Rufus Vincent, one of Maryland's two best performers, and indications point to an interesting duel between these two.

Much interest also should be centered in the point-scoring battle anticipated between Bozie Berger, Maryland's all-American guard, and Sawyers, the Generals' best shot. Berger hustled forward in the Capital scoring race last week to reach fifth place in a tie with Wilbur Jensen, of Gallaudet. Both have totaled 102 points.

The scoring leadership among local players remains with Wick Parrack, 6-foot-5 George Washington University forward. Parrack, in ten games, has whipped the cords for a total of 137 points, or an average of 13.7 points per game.

Trailing Parrack are Forrest Burgess, also of George Washington, with 130 points; Tommy Carolan, Georgetown's brilliant guard, with the same total; Ed White, of Catholic U., with 122 points; Bus Sheary, also of Catholic, with 109, and Berger and Jensen.

George Washington, which meets Duquesne tonight in Pittsburgh in an effort to increase its string of wins to 11, is the only undefeated college team in this section of the country. The Colonial five stopped Duquesne here last month by a score of 48-27, thus inflicting the Dukes' first setback of the season. The Pittsburgh crew has sworn vengeance on Coach Pixlee's team, so tonight's fracas probably will find the local team pressed to the limit.

By RICHARD S. TENNYSON.

AFTER wasting many scoring opportunties in the first half, the Concord Soccer Club organized its attack midway the second period and eliminated Columbia Heights from further consideration as Capital City League contenders by defeating them, 3-1, yesterday on the Monument grounds field.

Throughout the first half the German kickers had chances to score, but each time failed as its attack crumpled just when a goal was imminent. Watson, Heights goalie, was not in his best form, and on several occasions fumbled the leather in front of his goal, but each time there was not a Concord forward near enough to convert.

The second half started with the score standing 0 to 0 and the teams fighting bitterly for an advantage. Columbia Heights made an impressive attack early in the final period and Heinle Heise was called on to display all of his rare ability as a goalie to prevent a score. Karwina and Buschet aided Heise materially in all attacks on the German goal.

Concord Presses Attack.

Play was hard and fast for the entire half, and about midway the period Concord carried the game to the Northwest kickers' area. Malloch, who had been covered all afternoon by the Heights players and at times not too gently, smashed a hard shot for the goal. Watson blocked and tossed the sphere back in the scramble and then Herath worked it back to position and scored.

The game was soon back near the Concord uprights and after one of the defenders had blocked his own man Louie Koennell smashed a hard drive which Heise cleverly blocked but Hoffman was ready for the rebound and booted the equalizing score under the Concord crosspiece.

Concord's second goal was about the best of the afternoon. The Columbia Heights eleven had conceded several corners as the Germans attacked fiercely.

One of the corner kicks dropped at the mouth of the Heights goal and as the ball was bobbing about Beyerlin headed it into the goal to put Concord in the lead once more. The final goal resulted from a penalty kick well taken by Malloch. He shot the ball high in the left corner of the net. Watson did not have a chance to stop it.

British United took a stronger hold on fourth place by defeating Rockville in another fast game 1 to 0. Willie Bryden scored the winning goal in the first period on a penalty kick. The Maryland lads played a hard clean game and many of the spectators felt that they deserved at least a draw.

Vines Suffers First 1932 Tourney Defeat

Los Angeles, Feb. 14 (A.P.).—Ellsworth Vines, national men's singles tennis champion, suffered his first tournament defeat of the 1932 season here today.

He lost to Lester Stoefen of Los Angeles, ranked number 15 nationally, in four sets in the men's singles final of the annual city championships.

Runner-up to Vines for the past two years, Stoefen displayed a spectacular style to defeat the Pasadenan by scores of 6—4, 5—7, 6—2, 6—4.

It was Stoefen's fourth victory over Vines in 10 meetings. Vines had difficulty with his forehand, usually his best shot.

Grobmeier Meets Kirilenko on Mat

Rivals Who Fought to Draw Feature Card at Strand; Kley in Action.

Fred Grobmeier and Matros Kirilenko will be out to settle an old score when they clash in the feature match of the wrestling card to be offered by Promoter Joe Turner at the Strand Theater Thursday night. Two months ago this pair staged one of the most ferocious matches ever witnessed in this city. The two milled fiercely for 30 minutes before the whistle stopped them.

The remainder of the program includes Ernie Dusek, brother of the popular Rudy, vs. Dr. Ralph Wilson; George Kotsonaros vs. Tiger Nelson, Hans Kley, the German contortionist, vs. Frederico Carone, and Harry Nixon vs. Eddie Shabo.

Ernie Dusek is rated as one of the best of the younger wrestlers in the game, and bears the reputation of being a rough and ready worker. Kotsonaros, who formerly earned his daily bread as a movie villain, is a first-rate wrestler and should make things interesting for the Tiger.

TRACK ACES IN 3 MEETS IN 4 DAYS

Venzke, Spitz and Others Ars Facing Busy Week.

NEW YORK, Feb. 14 (A.P.).—Featuring the same array of stars who set a record-breaking pace in the Millrose and Boston A. A. meets, the indoor track and field season goes into high again this week with three meets on the program.

The entire collection of record breakers, headed by Gene Venzke, whose mile running feats have given rise to reports that he commutes on foot from his home at Pottstown, Pa., to the meets in New York, is slated to appear at the annual New York Athletic Club games in Madison Square Garden Wednesday.

The Seton Hall College meet at Newark Friday and the Meadowbrook Club games at Philadelphia carry the runners through to the climax of their preparations for the national indoor championships the following Monday.

Venzke to Oppose Lermond.

On the same fast, even lap track where he ran the mile in 4:11 1-5 for a world's indoor record, Venzke will face his leading rival, Leo Lermond, of the New York A. C., and a field which includes Carl Coan, of Pennsylvania; Glenn Dawson, of the University of Oklahoma, and Frank Crowley, of Manhattan College.

George Spitz, the ineligible New York University star who was the other record breaker of the Millrose meet, will take another crack at the world's indoor high jump record of 6 feet 8½ inches he set Saturday. Among his rivals is Ben Hedges, 1928 Olympic jumper who is returning to competition for another Olympic year.

Monty Wells, Boston hurdler who has been equaling indoor records regularly, and Percy Beard, the Alabama Poly teacher, will clash again in the 60-yard hurdles, while George Simpson, of the Los Angeles A. C., sprint winner at Boston, and Emmett Toppino, New Orleans dash man who cleaned up in the Millrose meet, toe the line with Ira Singer, indoor champion, and a number of other sprint stars.

Prep Schools Will Crown Champion in Tournament

FOR the first time in several years, the basket ball championship of the prep schools will be actually decided, instead of having the season end with numerous claimants for the title. The title holder is to be determined by an elimination tournament sponsored by The Post and George Washington University, in conjunction with the George Washington bicentennial sports commission. All of the eight prep schools have approved of the tournament and will be represented in the play.

Heretofore the prep schools have placed strong teams on the floor, teams that often defetaed the best of the public high schools, but were unnoticed because of the lack of an organized league, or tournament, by which a champion could be determined. Teams that very often had strong claims on the championship were defeated by little-known schools late in the season, and a true champion was seldom acknowledged.

The Post will offer a silver trophy and George Washington University has agreed to permit the teams the use of its gym for the tournament, and the bicentennial sports commission will cooperate with officials in every way in making the tournament a success.

Government League Starts Second Half

The Government League's second half season will be inaugurated tonight when Naval Hospital and Commerce tangle at 7:30 on the Central High floor.

Protests End Races Over Slow Run

Deep Snow and Slush Disappoints Riders and 25,000.

Final 2 Heats Scheduled Today; Track Argument Loud.

By EDWARD J. NEILL.

LAKE PLACID, N. Y., Feb. 14 (A.P.).—Seven teams of disgusted bobsled riders, led by Billy Fiske and Hank Homberger, battled a sluggish Olympic slide today, turned in embarrassingly slow times for two heats, and then openly rebelled at the idea of humiliating both themselves and the bob run further before a crowd of 25,000 in the final two heats of the deferred four-man Olympic championships.

"If you insist on making us race under these conditions," Paul Stevens, giant pivotman on the world record holding Homberger sled, told Erwin Hachmann, one of the two Europeans in charge of the course, "you'll go on without us. We're through for today. It's a travesty on bob racing."

The major part of an immense crowd, lining the mile and a half chute down Mount Van Hoevenberg, thought so, too, as Billy Fiske, defending the Olympic championship for the United States, turned in ambling runs of 2 minutes, 52-100 seconds, and 1:59.16 to lead the sledders of five nations after the first two heats.

Homburger Makes Slow Time.

Homberger, pilot of the Lake Placid "Red Devils," favorites to win the last of the championships in the winter Olympics that closed officially yesterday, could push his sled down the usually lightning slope in only 2:01.77 and 2:01.09, to trail Fiske's crew by 3.18 seconds in total time.

Hans Killian, German pilot, who has seen two sets of his countrymen rocket down the chute and crash through the awesome curves, sending six to the hospital, two still in plaster casts, led the five foreign teams with runs of 2:03.11 and 2.01.34, and put him 1.59 second behind Homburger in total time.

The big crowd, drawn by the lure of the breath-taking thrills and spills of the run up to today, were just as disgusted as the riders, and the sleds, plowing through slush an.. soft snow, came down the slide in times that did not even approach those made last week by the two-man bobsets in the Olympic championships. Hubert Stevens, winning the two-man championship with his brother Curtis, twice came down on the final day in 1:59 and 1:57—and the bobsets are considered between 15 and 20 seconds slower than the heavier, more powerful four-man cre·s.

German Driver Joins Protest.

Even Killian, the German driver, joined the protests of the Americans and the rest against the rule of Erwin Hachmann, German member of the international bobsled committee, who took over the slide after arguments during practice, and who has insisted ever since that the bobs can not run except on a slow track.

Originally the drivers had agreed to race all four heats of the championship today, but their wholesale protests, when ordered to take the track for the start of the third heat, forced the judges to postpone the third and final heats until tomorrow morning. Special permission to hold over the last two heats was received from Olympic authorities. Under Olympic rules the games should be concluded within 24 hours after the official scheduled finish. Meanwhile the argument over the track raged loud and bitterly through Lake Placid in the final possible controversy of the turbulent Olympics season.

Hackmann refused last night to allow ice to be frozen to the surface of the track or to permit removal of snow that fell through the night and morning, and during the races stood 6 inches deep on some parts of the course.

Water seeping through the ledges under the upper part of the slide left a 60-foot patch of slush above Eyrie, first big curve, and the snow on the straightaways forced all the drivers to keep in the rut made by the first sled. Down near the finish the snow

Rough Beach Delays Campbell's Speed Trial

Daytona Beach, Fla., Feb. 14 (U.P.).—A rough beach today caused Capt. Malcolm Campbell, British automobile speed record holder, to postpone trial runs in his revamped racing car Blue Bird, until northeast winds have smoothed out the ruffles in the white sands.

Campbell brought the car down to the beach for the first time today, but when he found the course too rough for a run, he posed for photographers and returned the car to its shop.

The captain explained he will make no dare-devil attempts this year. He will wait until the beach is smooth before trying to shatter his record of 245.733 miles an hour. He wants a perfect beach before aiming at 246 miles an hour.

LANDERS, RESTED, FACES SLUGGER IN NURSERY FEATURE

Kocsis Rated High Among Bantams

Bronson, Who Guided Tunney in France, With European.

Hungarian Is Former Olympic Winner; Landers Here.

BILLY LANDERS, whose popularity with local fight fans has been consistently healthy over a stretch of eight months, arrives here this afternoon to indulge in a final workout for his eight-round battle tomorrow night with Antol Kocsis, Hungarian bantam and flyweight champion, in Portner's Arena, Alexandria.

The blond Norfolk buzz saw is slated to do his training stunts in Mann's Gym, Fifteenth and East Capitol streets, between 4 and 6 p.m. He has not fought since appearing at Portner's five weeks ago, when he yielded a decision to Midget Wolgast, world's flyweight champion, but has remained active in training and is expected to appear in his normally fine condition.

Landers has a large order on his hands tomorrow night, being asked to defeat a boxer who is variously ranked from fifth to eighth among the bantamweights. Kocsis is said to be almost as clever a boxer as Wolgast, than whom there is none more polished, and a far more dangerous puncher.

Bronson to Second Kocsis.

Kocsis will be seconded by Jimmy Bronson, veteran New York fistic figure, who has predicted the little Hungarian will eventually wear the crown now adorning the brow of Al Brown. Bronson also will second Louie Jallos, Cleveland junior welterweight, who meets Bobby Burns, of Baltimore, in the 8-round semifinal.

Bronson's estimate of Kocsis' possibilities gains credence in light of the fact that Bronson predicted the world's heavyweight title for Gene Tunney during the World War period. While in France as Army athletic instructor, Bronson guided Tunney to the A. E. F. championship, and at that time prophesied that Gene would win the world's title.

Fights as Pro for Two Years.

Kocsis was "discovered" by Bronson in 1928 when he won the Olympic flyweight championship for Hungary. He has been fighting professionally about two years. Negotiations are now under way pointing to a flyweight championship clash between Wolgast and Kocsis, both of whom campaign among the bantams as well as the smaller class.

While Landers does not rank with Kocsis with respect to boxing ability, the Norfolk lad does seem to have a chance of winning tomorrow night. If Kocsis elects to slug it out, Billy may land his powerful right for a kayo.

Giants' Batterymen Start for Coast Camp

New York, Feb. 14 (U.P.).—Baseball's annual trek to the spring training camps got under way tonight when the New York Giants' first consignment of players rolled out of the Grand Central Station bound for Los Angeles.

Meanwhile, scattered throughout the country, other baseball players were packing their luggage, preparatory to hitting out for the various camps. Within a week, all major league pitchers and catchers, coaches, managers and a few other players will be on their way to training grounds.

Clash at Alexandria Tomorrow

EAGLES WIN FROM FIRE TOSSERS

Columbia Engine Co. Nosed Out, 26-25, in Thriller.

THE crown of the champion Skinker Eagles wobbled a bit in the big Bolling Field Gymnasium last night, in fact it was almost knocked off by the energetic Columbia Engine Co. tossers, but the Eagles saved the crown, their dignity and the ball game with a desperate stand in the final minute of play to win by a score of 26 to 25. The game, which was played at Bolling Field, was the second of the day in the round-robin series being conducted to determine the semiprofessional championship of this vicinity.

The Alexandrians had all the better of it in the first half, which ended with the Eagles on the short end of a 13-to-7 count. The Firemen swept their opponents off their feet with a whirlwind attack in the first half. They didn't bother, or waste time, in attempting to penetrate the Eagles' defense, letting fly with long pot shots and generally making them when the first outpost of the Skinker Team had been reached. Ellett Cabell, a slim, fleet-footed youngster, led the attack, ringing up 8 points.

Eagles' Attack Stronger in Final Half.

The champions' attack did not begin to function smoothly until the second half. They started on their drive to victory in a business-like maner, overtaking their rivals and forging ahead to 19 to 13 before the Virginians could score. Four baskets and a foul by Ralph Bennie, one basket by "Horse" Allen, and a brace of successful foul shots by Heagy, put the home team out in front. Thrice the Columbians rallied in th waning minutes of the fray, coming within a point of the Eagles on two occasions, but never were they quite able to knot the count.

Cabell was presented with the opportunity of not only tying the score, but possibly of winning the game when in the last minute of play, with the score 24 to 23 in the Eagles' favor, he was awarded two free tosses. The first popped out of the hoop after it had apparently dropped in, and he missed the second by a wide margin. Julie Radice's only two-pointer of the game boosted the Skinker score to 26, but Buddy Zimmerman kept his team right behind with a long shot. The game ended with the Eagles in possession of the leather.

FANCY SHOT CUE KINGS HERE

Peterson and Ribas at K. C. This Week in Title Series.

JUDGING from the interest shown since the announcement was made that Charlie Peterson and Isidor Ribas will stage part of their world's championship fancy-shot billiard battle here, the largest crowds ever to turn out for a local cue event will be on hand at the Knights of Columbus Temple next Friday and Saturday nights and at Saturday's matinee.

Until Ribas, a Spaniard, who has gained a great reputation in Europe for his ability as a cue magician, challenged, Peterson, whose slogan is "Show me a shot I can't make," was in a class by himself. Now his claims as the world's greatest trick-shot expert have been disputed and he and Ribas will fight it out for the title in a series of five matches, to be held here, in New York, St. Louis, Chicago and Cuba.

Point Total to Decide Title.

The championship will be decided on a point total as a result of the five series of play. Under plans for the title decision, each player will name 50 of his best tricks and a certain number of these will be decided upon at each meeting. Each player will be given four trials at each trick shot and points will be awarded according to how many trials each player needs per trick. Should Peterson, for instance, make a shot on his first trial and his rival fail twice before doing it, Peterson would be credited with two points. Failure to make a shot in the four tries allowed costs five points.

Peterson's ability in this respect is well known here, but Ribas has made his reputation abroad and his name is not a familiar one on this side of the big pond. But Albert Cutler, former veteran star and now a noted referee, is authority for the statement that Peterson will have plenty of trouble in his meetings with Ribas.

Cutler Rates Spaniard As "Greatest."

Says Cutler: "I regard Ribas as the greatest of all trick shot artists. He gets more action on a billiard ball than I believed possible, and his clash with Peterson will be a heetic battle all the way."

The two trick shc artists battle at K. C., 920 Tenth street, Friday and Saturday night, at 8:30 o'clock, with a matinee Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock. Tickets are on sale at the K. C. Temple and at Lewis & Kraiss' parlors, 817 Fourteenth street northwest.

SLOW TRACK HINDERS SLEDS

U. S. Leads 2 Heats Before Races Are Again Delayed.

was so deep that the Homburger sled, running 2 2-5 seconds faster than the best previous time through zigzag, bogged down so badly that it not only lost the advantage but also dropped an additional second in the run to the finish line, quarter of a mile away.

The remainder of the foreigners' times were so slow as to appear ridiculous in comparison with the showing of the two-man bobs.

All the bobsledders, last of the 331 competitors of 17 nations left in Lake Placid to add a final postscript to the 1932 games, argued indignantly about the village tonight, the Americans insisting the foreign management of the slide had ruined the greatest bobsled course in the world.

They insist the mile and a half run down Mount Van Hoevenberg, despite its tremendous curves and speeds as high as 75 miles an hour generated on a fast track in Shady Corner and Zigzag, is so perfectly constructed from an engineering standpoint that there is no great danger if the sleds are properly driven.

Irately they claim that all the skill and competition has been taken from the slide by filling it with snow, insisting that this has been done to favor riders who have driven years on snow surfaces abroad, and down chutes where 2:08 for a little over a mile is considered remarkable time.

Americans Argue That Fast Track Is Safe.

Homburger's world record for 1½ miles is 1:52, and the Americans argue that on a fast track, he can come down to 1:40 in perfect safety. Recently, to prove this point, a sled was sent down riderless from the top and it made all the big curves on the course, turning over in a straight-away finally, a quarter of a mile from the finish line.

There was a slight possibility tonight that the indignation might reach such a point as to bring some sort of a protest to oust from their commanding positions both Haskmann and Albert Meyer, of Belgium, who took over the slide following Capt. Werner Zahn's crash in practice, and arguments over practice periods.

While there was no need for more speed in the American sleds to hold back the foreign opposition, which was negligible today, the home folks here do want to protect the reputation, and if it has them, the pride and feelings of their $200,000 bobrun masterpiece.

Howard U. Five Host To Morgan Tonight

The Bison quint of Howard University will meet the redoubtable Morgan College five, of Baltimore, in the university gymnasium. The fast team from the Oriole City has suffered defeat but once in many years, being taken in hand by Howard earlier in the season on its own court.

The session, for this reason, is expected to be the season's thriller. Syphax, forward, has recovered from his recent injuries and, together with "Sallie" Hall and "Cy" Middleton, will be relied on for the main offensive.

A. Z. A. TOSSERS COP.

The A. Z. A. tossers, who will represent the J. C. C. in the 130-pound in the district A. A. U. title tourney, last night had little trouble in disposing of the Phi Beta five in a J. C. C. League game, 28-15.

When Washington Was Younger—No. 195

Chester & Handy Photos.

OLD-FASHIONED whoopee was in style back in 1882, when these two pictures were snapped by the then prominent photographic firm of Chester & Handy, of Cape May, N. J., with local headquarters at 426 Seventh street northwest.

These "shots" were taken on the occasion of the annual outing of the Washington Light Infantry at Cape May on August 23, 1882. The upper view shows members of the infantry mingled with members of the Marine Band on the sands. The bathing suits are somewhat different from the present models, but apparently were much more decorative.

To many Washingtonians, the lower view will bring back memories, for it shows the Marine Band ready to give a concert as part of the program for the outing.

The gentleman seated on the small platform in front of the band is John Philip Sousa, the March King, and his famous beard may be clearly seen. These photographs are reproduced here through the courtesy of Louis M. Kruger, 3101 Thirteenth street northwest, who was a member of the band for 33 years, playing violin and trombone. He is the third man from the left in the second row of musicians.

TAXI DRIVER ROBBED OF $25 AT GUN POINT BY 2 DAPPER FARES

Men Took His Cash and Fled in Northeast Section, He Reports to Police.

TAILOR SHOP BURGLARY NETS LOSS IN HUNDREDS

Purse-Snatchers Victimize Two Women; Bags Found, With Money Gone.

Thieves yesterday stole several hundred dollars' worth of wearing apparel from a tailor shop, and holdup men robbed a taxicab driver of $25, while two women were the victims of pocketbook snatchers.

Claude T. Huff, 41 years old, a cab driver, of 522 Second street southwest, reported to police that he was held up at the point of a pistol and robbed of $25 by two well dressed white men, who hailed his cab in front of the Harris Hotel, on Massachusetts avenue northwest, near North Capitol street.

The two men entered his cab shortly after 4 o'clock yesterday morning, Huff declared, and asked to be driven to Forty-seventh street and Sheriff road northeast. A short distance from their destination, Huff told police, one of the men produced a gun and demanded his cash.

Took Money and Fled.

Huff said they took $25 and fled along Sheriff road. The man who held the gun, he said, was wearing a light overcoat and brown hat. He was about 25 years old. The other man was about the same age, police were told, and was wearing a brown coat and light hat. Both were nicely dressed, Huff said.

Mrs. Elizabeth McQueen, 930 M street northwest, reported to police that a colored man snatched her purse containing several dollars and some personal belongings as she walked along Ninth street northwest near M street. She furnished police with a detailed description of the man.

A few hours later Mrs McQueen's pocketbook was found by police in a garage in the rear of Blagden's court northwest. Only the cash was missing.

Purse Found, Money Missing.

Earlier, Nina R. Norford, 132 Tenth street northeast, was the victim of a man who snatched her purse as she waited for a street car at Tenth and D streets northeast. About $5 in cash, railroad passes and other personal belongings were in the handbag. This pocketbook was later found in an alley in the rear of 323 Eighth street northeast with all contents safe except the money.

The tailor shop of Max Pollock, 3128 Fourteenth street northwest, was broken into by thieves and several hundred dollars' worth of miscellaneous apparel, being cleaned or repaired, stolen.

Pollock made the discovery yesterday morning when he came to his shop. Entrance had been gained by forcing a rear window.

Man Held in Watch Theft.

Frank P. Karvosky, 21 years old of Beaver Dale, Pa., is being held at the Third Precinct station on a charge of robbery, after it was alleged he forcibly took a wrist watch from Frank Ethridge, of Providenie, R. I., when the two met on the street near Lafayette Park early yesterday.

Etheridge told police that Karvosky approached him and after a brief conversation, grabbed his arm and tore off the wrist watch. After the man fled, Etheridge hailed Park Policeman S. B. Collins, and explained what had happened.

Policeman Collins gave chase and overtook the man at Vermont avenue and I street northwest. He is being held without bond pending Police Court action today.

Former Robbery Victim Routs Thief With Pistol

The determination to "be prepared" saved the day's receipts of Coleman Sheer, 35 years old, of 1521 Fifth street northwest.

Two years ago Sheer was held up and robbed by a colored man. He decided not to submit the next time an attempt might be made to steal his receipts.

Early today a colored holdup man entered the store. He demanded Sheer's money and pointed a gun at him. Sheer picked up a gun and fired two shots at the robber. The holdup man disappeared and Sheer's receipts were safe.

RELIEF GROUP TOLD OF ADDED DEMANDS

St. Vincent de Paul Society Hears Charity Director Describe Needs.

The Rev. John O'Grady, director of Catholic Charities, emphasized the serious situation confronting the relief organizations of the District of Columbia at the quarterly meeting of the Society of St. Vincent de Paul yesterday morning at the Shrine of the Sacred Heart.

According to Father O'Grady, the expenditures of the St. Vincent de Paul Society were 50 per cent greater for January than for the same month last year, while the expenditures of the Catholic Charities increased by more than 100 per cent, and at the present rate of expenditures the funds at the disposal of the Catholic Charities would be exhausted by July 1.

Father O'Grady said that there is every reason for believing that the people of Washington do not realize the seriousness of the situation, as they are looking to the relief agencies to take care of a very large problem of poverty with very limited funds, and he proposed that in the near future the St. Vincent de Paul members join in petitioning Congress for public relief in the District.

He urged that every member of the society aid the Community Chest to make up the deficit in its appeal. Representative John W. McCormack, of Massachusetts, stated at the meeting that the last ten years were noted for the decline of interest in charity work.

Catholic Scholar In Radio Sermons

Dr. J. K. Cartwright Gives First of Series Over Station WOL.

Dr. John Keating Cartwright, noted scholar, began his series of sermons on the Washington Catholic Radio Hour broadcast from the Church of the Immaculate Conception through Station WOL yesterday.

Father Cartwright said: "It has been contended by some that the belief in a life beyond the grave detracts from a due attention to the necessity and improvement of this life. The philosophy of the Russian revolution is largely based on this idea, and their policy of persecution of Christianity is justified to their minds by the thought of a golden age on earth. Yet, after all, the period of the world's history in which the greatest and most beneficial ideas concerning man's welfare upon earth have been discarded is the period of the Christian era. And the greatest improvement so far achieved in human society are those that have been achieved in Christendom with its immortal hopes."

Miss Florence Yocum and Frederick Nolan were soloists. The blessing of the sick and the solemn Lourdes procession took place at the grotto.

Police Save Hundreds As Steam Cap Breaks

Hundreds of lives were saved by police yesterday when a steam valve broke in a building at 612 F street northwest.

The valve, which was on a radiator, blew off and flooded the interior with steam. Police broke in and repaired the leak, thus saving all lives.

Harry Atherton, owner of the shop, was spared the loss of hundreds of dollars in fine canaries, dogs and other pets, which he has on sale.

Youth Burned As Hobo Chief Breaks Camp

A few hours after "Water Tight Pete," the king of the hobo camp at Tenth and Franklin streets northeast, had posted an order for the vacation of the camp, one of the camp's inhabitants was seriously burned when his clothing ignited near a camp fire.

Lloyd Hansford, 16 years old, farm hand of Kearns, W. Va., was taken to Emergency Hospital from burns received when his clothing caught fire. His father, Harmon Hansford, is employed in Cumberland, Md.

Police found the following order of "Water Tight Pete" pasted on the door of a shack:

"Order to leave. Precinct commander was here today and gave orders to leave. He has given his men orders to 'sap up.' Watch your step."

Boy,10,Playing in Street Injured by Automobile

Thomas Hommer, 10 years old, of Silver Spring, Md., was slightly injured yesterday when he was knocked down by an automobile while playing in the street near Fourth street and Pennsylvania avenue southeast.

Tenets Discussed By Father Sheen

Catholic Church Will Not Change Its Principles, He Declares.

The Catholic Church is intolerant about truth, about principles and about divinity, the Rev. Fulton Sheen said yesterday during his broadcast on the Catholic radio hour in his discussion of "Broadmindedness." The Catholic Church, he said, will not cooperate nor will it conform. In the past decade, he pointed out, the Catholic Church has refused to join two great world conferences on religion.

"The world may charge the church with intolerance, for the world is right * * * The other religions may change their principles, and they do change them, because their principles are man made. Religion is not a sum of beliefs that we would like but the sum of beliefs God has given.

"In the future, as in the past, the church will be intolerant about the sanctity of marriage, * * * she will be intolerant about her creed and ready to die for it, for she fears not those who kill the body, but rather those who have the power of casting both body and soul into hell. She will be intolerant about her infallibility, for 'Behold,' says Christ, 'I am with you all the days, even to the consummation of the world.'"

Car Breaks Off Water Plug And Hits Tree; Driver Held

Striking a fire plug and careening into a tree at Second and E streets northeast, a car which was driven by a colored man who gave his name as Thomas Harris, 43, of 457 Kings Court northwest, according to police, broke the plug, requiring the services of the Water Department to stop the flow of water.

Private D. L. Guest, of the Ninth Police Precinct, placed Harris under arrest, charging him with driving while drunk.

COLLEGE CONFEREES GATHER WEDNESDAY

Four-Day Conference Will Discuss Finding Jobs for New Graduates.

Placement in employment of new graduates will be discussed at the ninth annual conference of the American College Personnel Association at the Washington Hotel, opening Wednesday and ending Saturday. Representatives of approximately 350 of the leading colleges and universities will be present.

Dr. L. J. O'Rourke, director of research in personnel of the United States Civil Service Commission, will discuss the work of the Council of Personnel Administration created by an order of the President issued on April 25, 1931. The purposes of the council, as set forth in the order, are to develop a more effective and economical system of employment and personnel management in the Federal Government and to promote the welfare of its employment.

Among the objects of the council are the improvement of selection methods and plans to make more attractive the prospect of a career in the Federal service.

Dr. O'Rourke will give information regarding the personnel needs of the Government in positions which are filled by men and women with college training, and will discuss ways and means of keeping officials of the educational institutions advised of employment opportunities under the Government and the prospect of advancement.

Paris Exposition Described at Salon

Diplomats Hear Tribute to Mount Vernon Replica There.

Brig. Gen. William E. Norton, special assistant to the American commissioner of the French Colonial Exposition, described the exposition at the diplomatic Sunday evening salon last night at the Shoreham Hotel. In describing the reproduction of Mount Vernon, a part of the Colonial Exposition, Gen. Horton quoted a speech made by the Marquis de Chambrun, at the closing of the United States week last August 2. He said:

"In the midst of the splendors of the Paris International Colonial Exposition no exhibit could attract public attention in a more striking form than that offered by the simplicity and dignity of Washington's Colonial dwelling. Here in its white robe in the greatness of its Georgian architecture, the house of Washington stands as a symbol of greatness in simplicity and of noble endeavor."

Attending the salon were the Most Rev. Pietro Fumasoni-Biondi, the papal delegate, and Count and Countess Fumasoni-Biondi, brother and sister-in-law of the papal delegate; Miss Ann Washington, Bascom Slemp and Commissioner General Burke.

WILSON'S STUDENTS TO RESUME STUDIES AT COLUMBIA TODAY

Kramer Says Top Floor and Part of Second Have Been Made Ready.

BELIEVES FURNISHINGS WILL BE SATISFACTORY

Auditorium and Gymnasium Are Available to Those Attending College.

Students at Wilson Teachers' College will resume their studies at the Columbia School Building at Seventh and O streets northwest at 9 o'clock this morning after a four-day emergency vacation precipitated by condemnation of their college building at Eleventh and Harvard streets northwest last Wednesday.

Stephen E. Kramer, assistant superintendent of schools, who with Dr. Edgar Higbie, president of Teachers' College, has been in charge of the transfer, said last night the top floor of the Columbia School and part of the second floor have been transformed into a substitute teachers' college.

Furnished and Cleaned Up.

Mr. Kramer believes that when the 300 studenst report this morning they will not feel as dissatisfied over the building as they were last week when the transfer was ordered by the Board of Education. Mr. Kramer points out that the rooms looked uninviting at that time because they had not been in use. Now, he said, they have been furnished and cleaned up.

An auditorium and gymnasium are also available to the teacher college students, and a cafeteria will be fitted, Mr. Kramer said. The present changes, he said, are intended as a temporary measure, but if it becomes necessary to abandon the teachers' college building the Columbia School will be further improved for the comfort of the prospective school teachers.

Will Not Interfere.

The vocational school will be continued at the Columbia Building, but it will not interfere with the teacher students, the assistant school superintendent said.

The Ross School, adjoining the Wilson Teachers' College Building, in which cracks were discovered shortly after similar defects were found in the teacher college building, will not be vacated for the present, Mr. Kramer said. However, a careful watch will be kept on the building in case the condition grows worse.

The heating plant at Wilson Building, which furnishes heat for the Ross School, will be continued in operation, the school official reported. Razing or alteration of the Wilson Building will not begin until spring, baking it possible for the heating plant to continue functioning throughout the cold weather, Mr. Kramer said.

Police Called as Woman Appears in Suicide Mood

The actions of a woman near the Taft Bridge on Connecticut avenue yesterday excited the suspicions of residents in the vicinity and a police alarm was sent out that the woman was about to leap from the bridge.

PASTOR STRESSES GOD'S GENTLENESS

Obedience to His Wishes Is Urged by Rev. Mr. Collier at Tabernacle.

"God never moves by compulsion to secure his ends, but by the entreaties of the cross and the tender ministrations of the Holy Spirit He seeks to win us into that heavenly fellowship where service will be a real joy," said the Rev. Harry L. Collier, pastor of the Full Gospel Tabernacle, preachnig yesterday.

"He therefore asks of those whose hands are willing to render such service," the pastor went on.

"We see that the consecration of our service, by the filling of our hands with helpful purposes must be preceded by the emptying of our hands of present occupations. Every unclean and unholy pursuit must be surrendered before an offering that is acceptable to the Lord can be made. Even the labors of life which are not wrong in themselves must be laid down before we can fill our hands with divine things.

"It was a great moment in the life of Moses when Jehovah was calling him to the deliverance of Israel from the land of Egypt. He felt his inability to do so great a task just as we do today, but God has resources which are limitless when once our talents and our strength are consecrated to his will.

"Moses was a shepherd and stood before the Lord with the shepherd's rod in his hand when Jehovah asked him, 'What is that in thine hand?' and he said, 'A rod.' The Lord commanded him to cast it upon the ground. He did so and it became a serpent, and again the Lord commanded him to take it up from the ground again and it became a rod. The shepherd must cast his present occupation and power out of his hand before that same rod shall be restored to him as a prophet of God and law giver of Sinai. His hand must be emptied of its present world contracts and affairs in order for God to place that rod again in his hand, which is to become a nation's government and liberation.

"Who is willing to consecrate this day unto the Lord? He will take the rough, unhewn stone of your unholy life and under the chiseling and polishing of the Divine Architect will make you a polished shaft in the Eternal Temple of God," the Rev. Mr. Collier concluded.

Tear Gas Used to Rout Starlings at Theater

A tear gas barrage laid down by employes of the Fox Theater early yesterday drove the much harried and maligned starlings to another stronghold.

Long accustomed to nesting in the crevices and nooks of the stone frieze on the front of the theater, they were rudely routed by clouds of tear gas discharged from guns in the hands of attendants. Unlike so many similar battles, this one was witnessed by one spectator, a lonely and shivering policeman, who was detailed by his superiors to protect possible spectators.

FAITH IN GOD URGED TO DISPEL CLOUDS

Rev. A. R. Bird Counsels His Hearers to Aid Program for Mankind's Good.

"Every one can find clouds upon the horizon at almost any stage of his pilgrim journey through this world," declared the Rev. Andrew R. Bird yesterday at the Church of Pilgrims.

"There are hours when there seem to be nothing else but storm clouds, growing darker and more lowering. This is one of the facts of life, but there is also God.

"Since God gave His Son to die for us are we not justified by every rational process of the mind in being sure that He, the Almighty, thus proved to be the all-loving, will never permit us to lack any good thing?

"This does not mean that we will not have pain and sorrow and losses of many kinds, for in preparing us to enjoy perfect fellowship with Him and with one another our Father sometimes uses instruments that are sharp and bandages that make the world black to us.

But it does mean that a commonsense view of all the facts of history and experience that takes into account what God has been doing through the centuries, and what he has already done in the ennobling of the heart of man, is a ground only for confidence in the affairs of time and in the affairs of eternity.

"Does not this principle suggest to us activity as well as an attitude? Should not those for whom the sky is cleared by the knowledge of God's power and good will seek to forward God's supreme adventures for the good of mankind? Shall we not determine to forever reject that compact formula of unfaith which declares that a thing is normally desirable and yet forever beyond our powers?

"Once and forever let us shake off these fetters and declare that if a thing is morally desirable, if God has shown us that it is in line with His purposes, we will undertake it and strive for it until it is won, however distant it may seem upon the horizon."

EXISTENCE OF DEVIL SHOWN BY EVIDENCE, PREACHER DECLARES

St. Paul's Lutheran Pastor Discusses Conflicting Theories on Satan.

TRACES MANY BELIEFS REGARDING EVIL BEING

Dr. Snyder Says Freedom From His Sway Possible to Humans.

"The devil's approach is sometimes as an angel of light, but his objective is always as the roaring lion seeking whom he may devour," said Dr. Henry W. Snyder, preaching last night at St. Paul's Lutheran Church.

Dr. Snyder's topic was "Is the Devil Real or a Myth?" He said, in part:

"In these days we are inclined to ask to see things or to handle them, and to feel that much that is intangible does not exist.

"Among many examples of this truth that might be cited is the question of whether the devil is real or imaginary.

"We might mention three prominent ideas along this line. Those who regard Satan as a myth have in mind the nature religions which, being based on fear, people the woods with imps and fairies. Any unfavorable condition coming into the life of the human being is based on these spirits.

Theories of Devil's Origin.

"A second group does not believe in a personal devil but rather in the evil tendency that seems to be prevalent in everyone. This idea is something like the Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde theory.

"A third group believes in the actual personal devil. We are among those who feel that the weight of evidence is with this group.

"A natural question then is, how did he come into being? We can not attribute evil to a good God but we can readily believe that evil has always existed as a theoretic possibility arising through the absence of good just as cold is the absence of heat.

"The Epistles of Peter and Jude are responsible for the thought that these evil personalities were good beings who fell from their former estate.

"We are inclined to think of them as inhabiting some subterranean regions but the Bible seems to indicate that like any other spiritual personality they can be present anywhere.

How Satan Acts on Humans.

"Then we ask ourselves the question, how does the devil act? We believe through the power of mind suggesting to mind or personality, influencing personality.

"We know that we can be under the sway of human beings. Certain minds are able to influence us, particularly members of our own family or close associates. There is no question in our mind about this. We believe that the spirit of the living God acts on our receptive spirit. We believe the devil does the same thing by the power of suggestion, taking things that are in themselves wrong and making them appeal to us as being desirable.

"No better illustration of this can be found than in the story of the fall in the Garden of Eden or the temptations of Christ in the wilderness and the more frequently we yield the more do we come under the devil's power until we are his slaves.

Have to Obtain Freedom.

"The question now comes, how to get rid of him. Basing our ideas on the Bible we should say first of all be watchful for to be forewarned is to be forearmed.

Secondly resist him and he will flee from you. The devil can quote Scripture do his purposes and people under his influence have misused the Bible to prove the right of their cause. We need a proper understanding and interpretations of the word of God in our effort to resist the devil.

Lastly prayer for the power, presence and fullness of God because to be filled with good, and active in good, gives little or no room for the devil. These other things that come through the grace of God and by means of them we can nullify the influence and power of the devil in our lives, bringing those lives under the power of God himself."
